his attention on helping cancer patients live longer, happier lives. But he also helps tennis players learn to keep their cool on the court and has helped at least one hockey player, a member of the Boston Bruins, be more aggressive on the ice.

"We teach behavior control," Dr. Tatarunis said during an interview at his home this week.

Mental skills for tennis

During the month of July, Dr. Tatarunis conducted a three-day workshop, "Developing Mental Strength Skills in Tennis," at the Farm Neck Golf Club on Martha's Vineyard.

Officials work to update Senior Center

By Lisa Boudreau

The Andover Senior Center is behind the times, according to several people who are involved in senior citizens' issues in town. The solution, they say, is to expand and update or build a new state-of-the-art center but that could carry a $2 to $3 million price tag.

A new group, Friends of the Andover Senior Center, is looking to raise money for the cause and the friends hope to have a ground breaking ceremony for a new center by the time Andover celebrates its 350th anniversary in 1996.

Andover's current senior center, which is located on the first floor of the former East Junior High School building at Whittier Court, is too small to accommodate the current and growing needs of the senior citizens in town, said Sharon Souza, director of Andover's Senior Center. She said Andover has to expand the current Senior Center or build a larger one. Because the second and third floors of the building are occupied by school department offices opportunities to expand the senior center in its current location are limited, she said.

Ms. Souza recently toured several senior centers in nearby communities along with Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, Selectman Larry Larsen and a few members of the town's Council on Aging, to see how

David Reilly named town treasurer

By Lisa Boudreau

David Reilly, school department accountant and acting business manager, is the town manager's first choice to be Andover's next treasurer/collector. His appointment will go before the Board of Selectman for approval Monday night, Aug. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at town offices on Bartlet Street.

"I'm thrilled," Mr. Reilly said Wednesday. "I'm just ecstatic."

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said he chose Mr. Reilly because "His skill level is outstanding. He has an excellent resume

Volunteers review foster-care cases

By Jennifer Lewis

Approximately 230 children are reported abused and neglected each day in Massachusetts, and more than 13,000 of them live in foster homes or other community residences. To ensure the proper placement of local children in their foster homes, eight Andover residents volunteer as case reviewers for the Massachusetts Department of Social Services.

There are 620 volunteers in the state and 18 report to the Lawrence office.

Each child's case is reviewed every six months and the volunteers each sit on a committee with two members of the Department of Social Services; a member of the Foster Care Review Unit and a member of the administrative staff from the local area office. Together, they review the cases and make placement decisions.

Alleged burglar caught after 17 years; in court tomorrow

By Don Staruk

An alleged burglar wanted in connection with at least 10 house breaks in Andover, one dating back to 1976, and possibly several hundred breaks in other area towns, was caught by Boston police last Wednesday night, July 28, in Dorchester.

Ramon Torres, 46, of 178 Columbia Road, Dorchester, was caught after a foot chase by Boston detectives acting on a tip.

Mr. Torres was arraigned Thursday in Woburn District Court on seven charges related to breaks in Wilmington and Reading. At that time, he was also served with warrants for breaks in other towns, including Andover.

"Since 1987 we've been after him," Andover Detective Kevin Burke said of Mr. Torres last week.

Detective Burke served Mr. Torres with warrants for 10 house breaks in Andover, with 10 related charges of larceny of more than $250 and two charges of stealing a motor vehicle. The charges date back to a house break on South Main Street in Andover in 1976.

Mr. Torres allegedly worked the Interstate 93 corridor and faces additional charges in Billerica, Stoneham and other communities, according to Detective Burke. A Wilmington detective said 150 houses have been broken into along the I-93 corridor in recent years. A Boston detective alleges that in the last 20 years, Mr. Torres probably stole $700,000 to $800,000, according to published reports.

Police alleged Mr. Torres would often steal the cars from the homes he targeted and drop them in Dorchester, which led detectives to look for him in that area.

Detective Burke called Mr. Torres a "wild man."

Nobody would ever see him allegedly coming or going and his manner of entry varied. He might go through slider doors for several breaks, or windows, then he'd switch to another manner of entry or to another town, police allege.

"One night we had three glass sliders that he did," Detective Burke alleged.

He'd go up on top of additions to second floor windows. He would kick his way in, crawl in, whatever, the detective said.

Mr. Torres was connected to the crimes by his fingerprints, but police only had a picture of him from 1974, the last time he was arrested.

His most recent caper in Andover allegedly was a house break on Juniper Road on April 23, according to Detective Burke. In that case, the resident told police she'd only been gone from the house for half an hour when she came home and found the break.

Two weeks ago, on Saturday,

July 24, two house breaks were committed in Wilmington along I-93. Police found Mr. Torres' fingerprints and contacted Boston police. That was followed by the recovery in Dorchester of a car stolen from one of those homes. Boston detectives then received a tip as to where Mr. Torres lived, staked out an area and arrested Mr. Torres following a foot chase.

"What he did, he did the way it's supposed to be done. He's very slippery," Detective Burke said. "We've been after him a long time. It's kind of satisfying."

Mr. Torres also used several aliases including David Ortiz, Julio Ortiz and Roman Rodriguez, according to Detective Burke. Another name he used was Pedro Torres, according to reports. Mr. Torres has connections with Florida and Puerto Rico, Detective Burke said. He is being held on $100,000 cash bail and is due back in court tomorrow, Friday, Aug. 6.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Tony Jacous, left, and Scott Steiger, employees of Coady's Towing Service of Lawrence, clean up after an 18-wheel truck carrying 40,000 pounds of Breyer's ice cream spilled its load on Route 495 northbound just south of Route 28 at 6:50 a.m. last Friday, July 30. Mechanical failure caused the trailer to separate from the truck, according to state police. The trailer hit the guardrail, split open and rolled down an embankment adjacent to the Andover Country Club, spilling the half-gallon and gallon containers on the roadway and in the woods. Glen Cadose, driver of the truck, was not injured. The northbound lane of the highway was partially closed until 2:15 p.m. for the cleanup.

No decision on train whistles

Representatives from the Department of Public Utilities and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers listened while residents repeated complaints they've made to selectmen for the past 10 months about loud train whistles, but no decisions on the whistle blowing were made at the July 21 public hearing on the issue.

The state DPU held the public hearing at Memorial Hall Library to hear residents' complaints about the noisy train whistles. Town officials have been getting complaints since last fall when approximately 200 residents signed a petition in support of quieting the whistles. The complaints are that the whistles are being blown louder and more frequently than was past practice.

Selectmen in May granted the request of Leo Doherty, of 11 Buxton Court, and asked the DPU for the public hearing to request having at least some of the trains stop blowing their whistles as often and as loudly as they do now. Selectmen asked for complete elimination of the whistle blowing, but at least one board member had said before the meeting that a ban on the whistles during late-night and early-morning hours might suffice.

The whistles are sounded by about 95 trains during the week and 12 on weekends.

One point made by some of the approximately 80 residents at the hearing was that the trains don't blow the whistles in the town of Reading. They asked the DPU to explain why.

Mary Webster, of 9 Punchard Ave. and a commissioner for the DPU, said she would try to get an answer to that and other questions. The next step is for the DPU to hold an evidential hearing within the next couple of months where both sides will present evidence for their arguments. The DPU will then consider the evidence and make a ruling.

Officials work to update Andover Senior Center

other communities are meeting seniors' needs. A few weeks ago the group toured senior centers in Methuen and Chelmsford. This week they plan to visit senior centers in Arlington and Lexington. The following week they will tour centers in Peabody and Reading.

The group is looking for ideas on how Andover can improve its facility and the programs it offers, said Dorothy Bresnahan, of Argyle Street, chairwoman of the town's Council on Aging.

"We desperately need more room so we can offer more programs. We do offer a lot for the space that we have, but we'd like to offer more," especially programs that would interest men, such as a woodworking and a game room, she said. Andover's Senior Center has a pool table, but doesn't have the space to keep it set up permanently, said Ms. Bresnahan. In addition to interest in a game room, she said senior citizens have voiced interest in building a ceramics room and a social room where they could go to talk, read and relax.

Some of the senior centers the group visited have found ways to offer more craft programs and earn money by selling the results. The craft and thrift stores operated by some of the centers earn hundreds of dollars that help subsidize other programs, said Ms. Bresnahan.

In addition to social outlets, there is also a need for more preventive health programs, said Ms. Souza. Some of the centers the group visited have health clinics. General practice physicians, specialists and nurses schedule office hours at those clinics, which also are used as blood-pressure clinics and flu-vaccination programs, she said.

"We're touring centers that have state-of-the-art services, programs and buildings," said Ms. Souza.

"We are starting on a new senior center venture. We'd like to build either a brand new center, or see if we can renovate an existing building that may already be owned by the town," she said.

What Andover needs

Andover's senior center is lacking many features other centers have, said Doreen Correnti, of Tilton Lane, a member of the Council on Aging who founded Friends of the Andover Senior Center. She owns and operates Geriatric Assistance, a home health care agency for senior citizens. Ms. Correnti is a former nursing home administrator. She has seen first hand how seniors' needs have changed during the last 20 years. Communities need to respond to seniors' growing needs, said Ms. Correnti.

"We need programs for the growing number of seniors who are staying at home, especially with nursing home (eligibility) criteria changing," she said.

"We have wonderful, competent, skilled staff, but we don't have the space or the resources available to reach the people who need us," Ms. Correnti said.

Ms. Souza agrees. Expanding the Senior Center's adult day-care programs is a priority, she said. Right now the center has a social day-care program, said Ms. Souza. It provides opportunities for seniors who need limited assistance to participate in the center's activities. She'd like to expand Andover's adult day health program when space becomes available.

"What I'd like to see added is an adult day-program based more on a medical model of day care," she said.

"Medical day care is for seniors who have disabilities. They may be in a wheelchair. They may have had strokes. The program would take care of their physical and medical needs during the day. It is the type of program that keeps people at home and in the community," said Ms. Souza.

The current Senior Center has about 17,000 square feet, she said.

"It isn't even really that big. Some of it is wasted because of the way it is laid out," Ms. Souza said.

If Andover had a 27,000-square-foot senior center, which is about the same size as the two centers the group visited, there would be enough room to hold larger dances, bingo games and exercise classes. There would also be enough room to expand the adult day-care services, set aside rooms for ceramics, woodworking and other hobbies and have a large social room, Ms. Souza said.

Plans are underway

The newly formed Friends of the Andover Senior Center is looking into ways to make a new senior center a reality. The goal is to raise enough money to schedule a ground-breaking ceremony for a new or expanded senior center by the time Andover celebrates its 350th birthday in May 1996.

"We are now in the process of working with professional fundraisers and writing grants. We have some seed money that was donated by local businesses, but we need much, much more," she said.

Ms. Souza estimates that it will cost between $2 and $3 million to build a new senior center or renovate an existing building, which the group hopes will be donated by the town. Selectman Larry Larsen said his board has not discussed possible locations or buildings for a new center but will be working with the Council on Aging to investigate options.

Jennifer Welty, formerly of Andover, is competing this summer in the Star of Indiana Drum and Bugle Corps. The Corps is based in Bloomington, Ind. Ms. Welty, 20, plays bells and xylophones in the front ensemble.

The Star of Indiana Drum and Bugle Corps recently won the Midwest regional competition and is heading off to compete in more regional competitions. Ms. Welty said the Corps' final goal is the International Championship.

"The Corps won the championship two years ago," she said. "It's like an Olympics."

Last year the Corps placed third. The Corps' musical selections include Medea by Samuel Barber and Music for Strings, Per- cussion and Celeste by Bela Bartok.

Ms. Welty is a voice major at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. She said she would like to teach in the future.

"I would like to teach Drum Corps kids," she said. "It helps you gain experience."

Ms. Welty said a music instructor introduced her to the program two years ago.

Although members of the Corps perform every night, travel 1,400 miles over the summer, do not get paid and sleep on the gym floors of schools, Ms. Welty said it is all worthwhile.

"It's an amazing experience," she said.

"The people are very nice and the program is very well organized."

Andover High weight room now open to the public

Members of the coaching staff at Andover High School have agreed to volunteer to supervise the weight room at the school during some evening hours for the rest of the summer.

The weight room will be open to Andover High athletes, as well as Andover residents, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, from 5-8; and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6-9, reports Jim Hurley, athletic director of the public schools.

Mr. Hurley said the coaches decided to volunteer the time to supervise the room because people wanted to use it. He said that prior to budget cuts in the last few years, the weight room was open for athletes' use.

When school opens, the room will only be available to AHS student athletes, he said.

STRENGTH THROUGH DIET AND EXERCISE

Young women between the ages of 15 and 20 should concentrate on building bone mass. High bone mass at this stage in their lives will stand them in good stead in fighting bone loss, and possibly osteoporosis, later in life. Prior to age 20, priorities should center on proper dietary intake and exercise. Young women should strive to meet the recommended daily allowance of 1,200 mg for calcium. Equally important is exercise. Researchers at the University of North Carolina observed that female college freshman who were active and ate calcium-rich foods had 16.5 percent more bone than those who were inactive and ate little food high in calcium. Those who exercised more than four hours weekly during adolescence had the strongest bones, regardless of calcium intake.

Cumberland Farms takes over Main Street Gulf station

By Don Staruk

Cumberland Farms will retain full-service pumps at the Gulf gasoline station at 65 Main St., on the corner of Chestnut Street, but will not open a convenience store at that location, according to Ken Flint, area sales manager for Cumberland Farms.

Cumberland Farms, which owns Gulf Oil, is taking a new direction with gasoline stations and taking over management of them rather than leasing them to independent operators when the leases expire. Hussein Dameri, the last manager of Andover Gulf, "pulled out at the end of his lease," according to Mr. Flint, and Cumberland took over management of the station on Thursday, July 8.

"It will stay Gulf," and be operated as Cumberland Farms/Andover Gulf, Mr. Flint said.

The two islands will remain pretty much as they are, but both will be full-service.

"It will all be full-service at self-service prices," Mr. Flint said.

The company will not open a convenience store or offer any mechanical services in the service bays.

"We'll just leave them empty right now," Mr. Flint said.

Some of the old signs will come down and new, wooden signs will go up, Mr. Flint said.

Former owner

Andover Gulf was owned and run by Bill

Tynan, of 1 Longwood Drive, for 20 years until he sold it in January 1991 to Mr. Dameri and his wife, Renee Loayza, of Post Office Avenue.

Mr. Dameri ran a service station in Newton for seven years before taking over the Gulf station here.

Mr. Flint said he does not know where Mr. Dameri went after he left the Gulf Station or what happened to him.

Tage Inn make donation

The Tage Inn-Andover, located at 131 River Road, presented Bronya Ann Barraclough, of the American Cancer Society, a check for $300 on July 21.

The money was change thrown by guests into a granite fountain, located in the Tage Inn lobby. The fountain was built last year, during the inn's massive renovation, by Jerry Dodier of "Jerry The Mason" Inc.

Mr. Dodier was recovering from lung cancer when he was constructing the fountain.

Mr. Joseph D. Tagliente, Tage Inn president, decided it would only be appropriate to donate all the fountain proceeds to the American Cancer Society.

Mr. Dodier is doing well. He and his wife, Joyce, live in Draught.

Family's TV habits change after 8 days of no TV

By Lisa Boudreau

There was more art on the Adams' family refrigerator recently than there had been in a long time. Instead of watching television, 6-year-old Sam was painting, coloring and creating an assortment of masterpieces for his parents, Sue and Michael Adams, to display at their home on Haggetts Pond Road.

The Adams gave up watching television for eight days recently. They were one of three Andover families who gave up TV for a week. The Townsmen profiled the other two families in the July 15 edition.

Initially, Mrs. Adams said the challenge was more difficult for her family than it appeared to be for the other two families that gave up TV, even though she said she "loved" going without TV and didn't miss it at all.

But, her husband and son, she said, didn't feel exactly the same way at first.

Sam "woke up with a grin on his face" the morning after the TV ban, she said, because he knew he could finally watch cartoons.

Even though her husband and son agreed to go one week without TV, there were many times during that week when they became restless, Ms. Adams said. On the last night of the family's self-imposed ban, Mr. Adams gave up and turned on the TV to watch a program featuring stand-up comedians.

"I thought to myself, if this is what we have been missing it isn't much," she said.

Mr. Adams contends that in retrospect the week-long ban "wasn't that bad at all."

"It brought our attention to how much TV we really do watch and it showed us that we can get

'It brought our attention to how much TV we really do watch and it showed us that we can get along very well without it.'

along very well without it," he said.

Sam complained several times during the week that there was nothing to do, said Mrs. Adams. Once during that week he told his mother, "I'm sorry I agreed to do this."

"Sam is an only child and I think it was harder for him" to give up TV than it was for the children in the two other families that were profiled by the Townsmen.

"There aren't kids in the neighborhood that he can play with, and I think Sam uses TV as a companion," she said.

Sam usually watches cartoons in the morning, some children's shows in the afternoon and some shows a couple of hours before bedtime, his mother said. Instead of watching TV, he colored, played with his Legos more than usual and spent time reading with his parents.

"I took Sam to the library to return the books we had read together before the no-TV week and we took out some more. Even though (Michael and I) interacted with Sam more than we might have in the past, he still had to find ways to entertain himself when we weren't able to be with him," she said.

"I think we are going to limit the amount of TV we watch to two hours (each day) from now on," said Ms. Adams.

"Sam was so happy that he could turn on the TV (after the ban) that he is amenable to just about anything, but he will have to make some choices. He said he will watch a little bit in the morning, afternoon and at night," she said.

Mr. Adams said Sam now watches less TV and has continued to find ways to keep busy.

"What comes to mind is that the other day he sat down with some paper and tape and created a whole bunch of different things. He rolled the paper and made a tube. Then he made another one and taped them together for binoculars," said Mr. Adams.

"I think he has definitely become more creative. Otherwise he would have vegged in front of TV with the remote," he said.

Old habits die hard. Just the other day, admits Mr. Adams, he came home and "out of habit" sat down in front of the TV because he was bored. He said he was glad his wife reminded him of the family's pledge to watch less TV.

"So instead, we go up and got some of the stuff done that we had put off," he said.

board deliberations. He will also serve on one of the board's subcommittees.

Mr. Sebell has been involved in school and student government in his three years at the school. This year he served as the school's town meeting moderator (town meeting is CSW's main student government body), and in past years has served on the school's judicial board and boarding life committee.

A merry feast was held for South fourth-graders

Teacher Scott Besterman's class includes Matthew Rose, Pawan Deshpande, Cynthia Cohen, Michael Chabot, Michael Ashley-Rollman, Tommy MacElhaney, Peter Marino, Jeff Valera, Owen Fitzpatrick, Adam Lundquist, Jon Gardner, Matt Guertin, Mike Ring, Alex Caplan, Amanda Barash, Janice Chu, Katie Buckley, Jennifer Aronson, Michelle Lin, Alison Shurman, Calvin Leung and Lindsay Hanna.

"Eat, Drink and be Merry" was the theme as the fourth-grade classes of Michael Pearl and Scott Besterman came together for a feast June 18, "the likes of which South School had never before seen," they said.

The two classes held a medieval feast filled with all the pageantry and festivities befitting a celebration of this era to bring their study of the Middle Ages to a fitting conclusion.

Appropriately costumed students feasted on appropriate food and performed in a variety of plays and dances relevant to any medieval setting.

Several other activities, as seen in these photos, rounded out the medieval-event study schedule the students enjoyed this year.

A musical procession at South School included fourth-graders Jennifer Busby, Pawan Deshpande, Matt Guertin, Christine George, Alison Shurman and Anna Jones.

Two members of the Society for Creative Anachronism do battle on the South School playground. They visited in period dress, also demonstrating music and dance steps.

Fourth-grade teacher Michael Pearl and "class nanny" Amy LaRowe are chosen as king and queen during a medieval feast at the Higgins Armory Museum in Worcester.

APPRECIATION ON YOUR HOME

If you rent a home, you probably pay your landlord less in rent each month than you would pay on a mortgage for property that is similar to the one you are renting. Why do people pay more each month to own a home of their own?

A home grows in value over the years. The rate of appreciation will depend on many factors, especially the home's location, interest rates, and the general economic climate in the community. For example, if you purchase property for $100,000 and it grows in value at the rate of 5 percent each year, after five years its value would have grown to approximately $121,000. At 10 percent annual rate of growth, the value of your investment goes up to $146,000. As the value of your property is rising, the rent will be increasing for those who lease. As a homeowner, your mortgage payments will remain constant over the next 15 or 30 years, while you build up equity as the mortgage is repaid and the value of your home increases.

Channel 12 presents Adams awards

Where do the future television producers get their start? Many of them have begun their training in high school in local-access cable facilities such as the one at Andover High School, according to its sponsor, TCI Cablevision.

This year, seven Andover High School seniors celebrated four years of involvement in Channel 12 programming during the fourth annual ADAMS Awards. Based upon the Emmy awards, the ADAMS awards recognize excellence in technical, performance and production skills.

The awards ceremonies, which were produced and hosted by Karen Hayden of TCI Cablevision, were held June 25. Ms. Hayden introduced the guest presenters, including Tim Thomas, principal of AHS, who awarded Best Director to Chad Murphy and Best Technical Director to Wendy Darling.

Other awards were: Best Camera, Paul Kempton; Best Audio, Dominic Singh; Best Amiga graphics, Ed Moore; Best Sports-caster, Dominic Seibert; Best Host of a single show, Brandon Auchterlonie for Listen: Date Rape; Best Host of a series, Marc Nazzaro for Rock Da House; Best Performance in a Drama, Emily Branson in Hanging; Best Performance in a Comedy, Ed Moore in Return of the Lizardman; Most Comedic Moment, John Mercier and Tom McIntire for Star Trek: The Next Degeneration; Best Script, Hanging, by the Andover TV Workshop; Best Editors, Brandon Auchterlonie and Chad Murphy; Best New Show, Mike Homewood for AHS Sports in the Spotlight; and Best Producer, Mark O'Donnell for Flightline.

Three special awards were given for outstanding service to the station and TV classes. Steve Paquette was recognized for his efforts in editing the Listen series, Visions and Information Only with faculty member Harry Durso. Kate Lennon was selected as the "Unsung Hero" for her efforts behind the scenes at Channel 12 and Greg Peters was chosen as "Team Player."

Part of the ADAMS Awards also includes giving out school "letters" to the students who have met the criteria of length of involvement, technical ability, leadership and service. Four underclassmen were recognized: Kate Lennon, Marc Nazzaro, Greg Peters and Dominic Singh.

Seniors Brandon Auchterlonie, Wendy Darling, Ed Moore, Chad Murphy, Mark O'Donnell, Steve Paquette and Dominic Seibert were surprised with a retrospective video done to the David Bowie song, Changes. Three of them plan to major in the communications fields in college, while the others plan to stay involved in other ways.

The awards ceremonies will air on Channel 12 throughout this month.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

TOBACCO AND ORAL CANCER

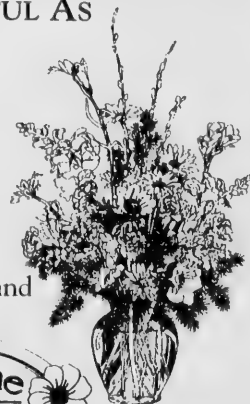

There is good news and bad news concerning tobacco use in this country. The good news is that annual cigarette consumption had declined from nearly 650 billion cigarettes in 1982 to about 500 billion in 1991, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The bad news is that use of the most dangerous form of smokeless tobacco (snuff) has increased from about 33 million pounds annually to about 47 million pounds during the same period. Even more alarming is that much of the use of smokeless tobacco products centers around young adults. The U.S. Surgeon General cites a 1991 report that about 20 percent of high school males had used either chewing tobacco or snuff during the previous 30 days. Continuation of this behavior could lead to an epidemic of oral cancer in this country.

Realizing the relationship between dental health and a patient's overall health, your family dentist uses all methods of diagnosis, preventive, and restorative care to promote total patient well-being. We offer this column to our newspaper readers in the hopes of educating the general public about the benefits of oral health. If we can help, either by answering questions or providing comprehensive dental care, please call us at 475-2431, 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93. Hours: Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6 and by appointment.

PS: According to the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, 72 percent of snuff-using baseball players had oral lesions that may lead to cancer.

SCHOOL TALK

Students from Andover High School recently attended the 1993 Salem State College High School History Conference. The annual gathering is the result of the cooperative efforts of the participating high schools. Andover students attending were Alan Arstenstein, Tamar Carroll, Mona El-Sheikh, Susanne Eymmer, Anne Hwang, Stacey Jenkins, Beth Picardi, Susanne Eymmer, Nate Roberts and Max Soong. They were accompanied by faculty member Katharine Horne.

The students considered a number of challenging issues and their past, present and future ramifications. The questions ranged from such domestic issues as the relative merits of employment expansion and debt reduction, school choice and rationales for American immigration policy to questions about the practicality of organizing international structures to deal with global environmental threats and to combat massive inter-group conflict and genocide. Participants came from high schools in Georgetown, Methuen, Salem, Marblehead, Lynnfield, Beverly, Danvers, Hamilton-Wenham and Swampscott as well as Andover.

Michael Trombly, 16, of Andover is traveling this summer with Sport For Understanding (SFU) International Exchange, a non-profit exchange program for teen athletes. The St. John's Preparatory School student was selected for the golf team and went to Scotland June 24. For information about SFU, call 1-800-TEENAGE.

Stone Zoo to host Family Fun Day Sunday

It's a girl! It's a llama! And it needs a name.

The Stone Zoo in Stoneham has a new addition and the Commonwealth Zoological Corporation is hosting a special Family Fun Day to celebrate.

On Sunday, Aug. 8, from noon to 4 p.m., bring the family for a day of fun and help the zoo staff choose a name for its newest resident, a baby girl llama born at the zoo on June 19.

She lives with her mother in the zoo's brand new South American Grasslands exhibit, along with four other llamas and a pair of huge South American rodents called capybaras.

Name suggestions for the zoo's newest pride and joy can be dropped off at the zoo throughout the Family Fun Day. A special drawing will be held at the end of the day for a souvenir llama gift package worth $50.

In addition, Wendy Frank's HumanNature will delight with a lively, interactive and educational performance of stories and songs.

The Discovery Workshop of Melrose will entertain with puppet shows, stories and improvisations.

All events are free with regular admission: adults $2 and children 4-11, $1.

For more information call 442-2002.

It's a girl! A llama was born at the end of June at the Stone Zoo in Stoneham. The llama and her mother, Coya, live in the zoo's brand new South American Grasslands exhibit. The zoo is hosting a special Family Fun Day on Sunday, Aug. 8, to gather suggestions on what to name the new llama.

Benny and Joon coming to town

By Laura Wilson

Stop hitting yourself in the head. So you missed that movie you had wanted to see all year. So you won't be able to see its full effect on the Big Screen. Relax.

Your solution is here:

Andover's own Friday Night Movies.

For just $3 you can view your favorite flicks "on the big screen" (some not yet available on videocassette), in Andover's own, air-conditioned Old Town Hall. Even better, refreshments will be available right there. And all of your contributions will go back into providing more events like these.

So don't just sit there. Call your friends. It's tomorrow night, Friday, at 7:30. Old Town Hall is located at 20 Main St.

The fun begins this week with Benny and Joon, a romantic comedy, rated PG, about falling in love and finding a friend, starring Johnny Depp and Mary Stewart Masterson. You don't want to miss it (again). There will be a long wait for it as a new release when it becomes available at the video store.

Join DCS for Friday night at the movies! Upcoming movies for August are: Aug. 13: Cop & 1/2 (PG); Aug. 20: Swing Kids (PG-13).

Coming in September: Dave (PG).

Treble Chorus summer camp will perform next weekend

The Treble Chorus of New England will perform at the Centre Congregational Church in Lynnfield Center Friday, Aug. 13, and Saturday, Aug. 14, at 7:30 p.m. These concerts are free and open to the public.

The church trustees have approved the annual summer singers and opera workshops be held at the church, beginning tomorrow, Aug. 6.

Simultaneously, an adult professional conducting workshop will be held under the direction of Don Teeters.

More than 90 students, ages 7-17, have registered for the workshops but there is still room for a few more. Call Artistic Director Marie Stultz at 664-4705. The Singers Workshop offers advanced study in voice instruction, score reading skills, theory and sight singing, foreign language diction and staging techniques for the opera.

Fax it: 470-2819.

New England Quilt Museum celebrates its re-opening

New England Quilt Museum is back. After being forced to close due to a flood more than two years ago, the museum has purchased a historic bank building at 18 Shattuck St. in downtown Lowell, and is celebrating the purchase and reopening with "Back from the Flood," an exhibition of contemporary and historic quilts from the museum's permanent collection. The exhibition will close Sunday, Sept. 26.

The show presents the diversity and quality of quilt works acquired for the museum since 1984. Included are quilts from the 1840s to the 1980s, reflecting the main currents of the American quilt tradition and New England's leadership role in renewing quilt art over the past 15 years. Some quilts will be showcased on walls, others in rooms that place quilts in period settings to be seen as their makers might have used them. The 18 quilts include Log Cabin, Amish, Flag, Floral, Crazy, Mariner's Compass and LeMoine Star styles, among others.

Two contemporary quilts are closely tied to the museum's founding. Archipelago by Nancy Halpern of Natick was commissioned in 1982 by the New England Quilters Guild and unveiled at New England Images I, the guild's first major quilt exhibition, organized to raise funds to establish the New England Quilt Museum. Archipelago depicts houses and trees on islands off the coast of Maine, inhabited by poets, painters, writers, quilters and other artists. The quilt provided the design inspiration for the museum's logo and was the first in the museum's collection. Bloodroot by Winchester resident Ruth McDowell was also commissioned by the New England Quilters Guild for presentation at Images II in 1986. Measuring more than five feet in height and just under 10 feet in width, this striking work is really two quilts in one. The front is three-dimensional with stuffed and padded bloodroot flowers set into two-sided quilted leaves. The back presents the woodland habitat of the bloodroot plant. The museum's new facility allows this quilt to be hung so both sides can be viewed.

Another notable quilt in the exhibition is the Lowell Crazy Quilt made circa 1900 by Blanche Wiggin Staples of Lowell. The quilt includes many historical items, including a silk bandana from the 1893 Chicago World's Fair, a satin ribbon honoring the 250th anniversary of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company (1888), and a ribbon promoting the Honorable Frederick T. Greenhalge's candidacy for U.S. Congress.

The New England Quilt Museum began in 1980 as a project of the New England Quilters Guild, whose members planned a permanent home where a quality collection, library, gallery and exhibition space could be built, which would be a resource for quilters and the public. The museum opened as a separate, legally chartered institution in 1987. Originally located in a Lowell mill, the museum was forced to move in the summer of 1991 due to a wastewater flood. Since that time, it has had temporary offices in the Boot Mills complex in Lowell.

The museum preserves, interprets and celebrates American quilting past and present. The museum is a private, non-profit corporation supported by members' dues, admission charges, museum store sales, private donations and gifts and grants from foundations, corporations, and government agencies including the Lowell Historic Preservation Commission and the Lowell Cultural Council.

The museum is open 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, Sunday from noon-5 p.m.

Admission is free to members; $3 for adults, with discounts for students and senior citizens.

Some programs require advance reservations. Group tours are welcome by appointment.

For directions and more information, call 452-4207.

Luncheon lecture topic, Rev. Symmes and the American Revolution, talks politics

The public is invited to a lecture on William Symmes and the American Revolution at the Parson Barnard House, 179 Osgood St. in North Andover, Wednesday, Aug. 11, at noon.

Carol Machado, director of the North Andover Historical Society, will talk about the life of the fifth minister of North Parish and the political climate in Andover village from 1757 to 1788. The Rev. Symmes lived in the Parson Barnard House from 1757 to 1807 and witnessed such events as the French and Indian War, the Stamp Act, Boston Tea Party and the Battle of Lexington. In 1788, his youngest son, William Symmes Jr., was chosen leader of the Andover delegation to determine if Massachusetts would adopt or reject the Constitution drawn up at Philadelphia the preceding year.

Admission is $1. People are welcome to bring a bag lunch; drinks and cookies will be provided. The event is co-sponsored by the Andover and North Andover historical societies.

Free class for pregnant women

A free early pregnancy class will be offered by Bradley Method instructor Marie Rabideau, AAHC, on Thursday, Aug. 26, at 100 Kara Drive, North Andover. This class is free. Women in early pregnancy and those in the planning stages are encouraged to attend with their partners.

Call (603) 382-3815 to register.

Spinning Day will be held Sept. 26 at the Museum of American Textile History

The ancient art of handspinning will be highlighted at the Museum of American Textile History's seventh annual Spinning Day Sunday, Sept. 26, from 1 to 5 p.m. A variety of spinning wheels, many brought to New England from distant countries, will be exhibited at the museum.

The spinning wheels, dating from 1707 through 1930, are part of an extensive collection donated by Joan Cummer of Hillsborough. The long-time spinner and occasional sheep raiser will be on hand to answer questions and supply information about her collection.

Demonstrations by the Boston Area Spinners and Dyers and the Kearsarge Roving Spinners, cloth-making activities for children, and an exhibit by the Essex County Needlecraft Guild will also be featured. Donna Sauter of Steuben, Maine, will be in front of the museum spinning fiber directly from her angora bunnies, while several of her sheep and a goat graze on the lawn.

Admission to Spinning Day is $3 for adults, and $2 for children. Call 686-0191.

Hearing Health

Q: What should I do with my used hearing aid batteries?

A: Batteries should be collected for disposal as hazardous waste. Mercury and silver batteries are the most dangerous to the environment. One mercury battery in six tons of garbage exceeds allowable government set limits for mercury in solid waste. Some states have even outlawed the use of mercury batteries.

Zinc-acid batteries have now replaced mercury as the most commonly used battery. Although they have a low toxicity, zinc-air batteries are still considered a potential health hazard.

Audio Hearing Center in Andover accepts spent hearing aid batteries (and other types i.e. watch batteries) for recycling and/or proper disposal. Additionally, a ten cent rebate towards new hearing aid batteries is allowed on all used hearing aid cells returned.

Please call us at 475-9595 for further details, and information about our battery club.

Choral ensemble Joy Inc. presents musical revival at West Parish Saturday night

Joy Inc., a choral ensemble made up of junior high school voices from across the state of Connecticut, will present a new musical at West Parish Church, 129 Reservation Road, on Saturday, Aug. 7, at 7:30 p.m.

The 60-voice choir, under the direction of Chris Savage, was started in 1987 as an outgrowth of the popular high school group Musicon. "You might have called what we started out with a pilot program. The year I took over the group there were eight staff and seven kids. But we believed God was calling us to do this ministry with young people, so we went ahead," said Mr. Savage.

Joy Inc. has grown into a choral force of 55 teens and 10 adult advisers.

Each year the staff writes a new musical weaving together the best of contemporary Christian music with solos and narrative.

"We start with a character or a concept," Mr. Savage said. "We try to focus on issues the kids are facing - issues we all are facing. We rehearse the show in a five-day conference period in August and then take it on the road. Last year's musical was called "Equal Access" and tackled the issue of a group of kids at a public school trying to start a Bible club. The theme of this year's musical has not yet been released. But I can tell you it is a great way to communicate the gospel message, both to the teens we work with and to the congregations we serve."

Saturday's concert is free and open to the public. A free-will offering will be taken to help defray expenses. For more information, call West Parish Church at 475-3528.

Making dolls for some forgotten children: AIDS babies

Two Andover teen-agers participated in the North Andover-based Dolls-For-Dolls project. The Dolls-For-Dolls project, started by Evelyn Avallone, makes dolls for some of the most forgotten children around the world - AIDS/HIV positive babies.

Alexis Olans, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Olans, of Oriole Drive, and Lisa Jayne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Jayne, of North Main Street, learned how to stitch the gingerbread-shaped dolls from Mrs. Avallone. The girls are working on their Silver Award for Girl Scouts. The girls learned the value of Mrs. Avallone's AIDS-awareness program and transferred their knowledge to scores of other people through the free raffling of pillow Humpty Dumpties. Ms. Olans, 14, said she made 15 dolls and the clothing for them. She had most of the materials for the dolls at home.

"I like sewing and arts and crafts things," Ms. Olans said.

Since its inception in the spring of 1992, the Dolls-For-Dolls program has distributed more than 2,500 free dolls internationally to babies.

Anyone interested in joining the Dolls-For-Dolls project in any way (from donations to doll-making) can contact Ms. Avallone at 685-6389.

Tennis doc, cancer coach – he works on all of it

He developed the program with Jim Ahearn, tennis pro at Cedardale Athletic Club in Haverhill. He learned tennis in order to be able to develop the program, but doesn't play much any more and prefers walking for exercise. He said not playing the game does not hinder his ability to help pros play better.

"My problem is the mental thing. Their problem is the physical thing."

The difference between their program and others on the market or in books is that theirs is a single program, "organized with one plan of action," as opposed to a number of approaches to choose from. It takes a methodical approach and is presented in an educational manner, Dr. Tatarunis said.

The workshop focused on two areas, on-court behavior and "inner mental practice," both aimed at improving competitive skills.

"Hypnosis is one of the techniques used in the workshop to conduct 'inner-mental practice,'" Dr. Tatarunis wrote in a description of the workshop. "Inner mental practice techniques are now used by athletes in all sports to improve their playing skill. Researchers have found that athletic skills can be improved by using the imagination. These imagery techniques are now used extensively by Olympic athletes from all countries."

The techniques used for athletes are similar to the ones he uses for his other patients.

"What you really have to do is concentrate on what's happening in the moment and to let go of what's already happened."

A lost point or a bad shot is a distraction if it's not put in the past. So he teaches tricks to regain concentration. In tennis, he teaches players to focus on the ball to regain concentration. In hockey, they focus on the puck.

When two people with equal physical skills are competing, "it's the guy who plays the game mentally who wins," he said. "You have to develop a positive attitude even when you're losing."

Hypnosis: Motivation counts

When he first began practicing hypnosis, while still a teacher in Danvers, word got out in his school and five overweight women showed up in his office for help losing weight. Glad to have bodies to work with, Dr. Tatarunis took them on.

"Two got fatter, two stayed the same and one lost 65 pounds," he said.

That was a good lesson because he learned that it was the person's motivation that makes the big difference with hypnosis, he said.

Hypnosis has a bad reputation because the only exposure most people have to it is from stage theatrics or on television. But hypnosis is more like meditation than black magic, he said.

He teaches athletes to watch themselves practice under hypnosis, in slow motion, in regular motion and from outside themselves.

He does less work with addictive problems now and instead focuses his attention on people suffering chronic pain, including cancer patients. He teaches patients to visualize success, to relax and to live in the present moment. Once cancer patients can buy into living in the present moment, it makes living much easier for them, he said. It's an overused line, he admits, the person has to learn to take just one day at a time, do what can be done, and let the rest go.

"It's a concept that you have to buy," Dr. Tatarunis said.

He also teaches people that they can change their behavior.

People often come to him with a problem, such as getting angry and overreacting, and give the excuse of "That's the way I am."

"Well, if it's killing you, change," he said he tells them.

He uses what he said is an old Lithuanian saying.

"If you continue to do what you are that perfection is a concept not part of reality."

"Everything in each moment is as good as it can be," he said. "No matter what you do, it can always be done better, but each time you do it is the best you can do it in that moment."

Varied experience

Dr. Tatarunis said that if someone told him 15 years ago he would be teaching hypnosis he would have thought they were crazy.

He took up meditation himself 17 years ago as a form of relaxation and to control some things that were going on in his life. He retired from teaching and found hypnosis when a former student asked for help in organizing a hypnosis seminar in Connecticut. He liked what he saw and became a partner in the organization.

He is now semi-retired, working two days a week, three weeks a month.

"But the days I work are very long days."

Last Thursday he had 13 individual appointments.

He enjoys working with cancer patients and says he learns as much from them as they do from him. He has set fees, but finds that he often works for people who can't afford to pay him full price.

"Really, it's a very interesting life that I'm having now," he said. "I'm 67 years old and I'm having a great time."

Background

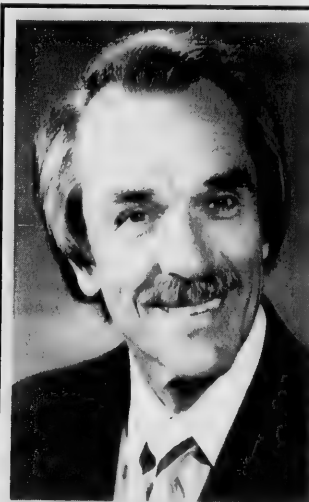

Dr. Tatarunis has been an Andover resident for 30 years. He taught music for 31 years in Massachusetts public schools and was director of music/media services, drama and public communications for the Danvers public schools for the last 25 years. He was an adjunct instructor at the University of Lowell, (now UMass) Emmanuel College, Berklee College of Music and the Boston Conservatory of Music.

He co-authored Teaching Music in Today's Secondary Schools, a college textbook, in 1975 and has written more than 40 newspaper and magazine articles.

He is co-authoring a book called Optimum Tennis and wrote a stress management primer that goes with tapes and which is with an agent waiting to be published.

He has an undergraduate degree from Lowell State Teachers College, a master's degree from Harvard University and a doctorate of education with a major in educational media from Boston University in 1975.

Dr. Tatarunis and his wife, Marcia, a retired Groveland music teacher, have two children, Paula, 41, and Steve, 36.

Once cancer patients can buy into living in the present moment, it makes living much easier for them, he said. It's an overused line, he admits, but Dr. Tatarunis said he tries to help people learn to live with cancer, not die with it.

Alphonse Tatarunis

but Dr. Tatarunis said he tries to help people learn to live with cancer, not die with it.

In addition to the sports seminars, Dr. Tatarunis, president of the Greater New England Academy of Hypnosis Inc., and his partner, Agustin Hernandez Jr., a certified registered nurse, also run seminars in clinical hypnosis for health professionals. These seminars have been approved for continuing education credits by the Academy of General Dentistry, The American Association of Nurse Anesthetists, and the Massachusetts, California and Iowa boards of nursing.

Anesthesiologists use hypnotic suggestion to alleviate fear in the operating room, according to Dr. Tatarunis.

Stress management

Three things cause stress, according to Dr. Tatarunis: circumstances, events and people. He tries to convey one basic rule.

"If you can do something about it, do it. If you can't, screw it."

If someone is waiting for results from a cancer test, he or she can worry him- or herself sick. But nothing can be done about the outcome of the tests and doing now, you are going to get what you're getting now. If you don't like what you are getting, change."

Events happen, he said. If you go out to your car and it has a flat tire, you can go bananas, but you still have to fix the flat.

"So what difference does it make?"

As for people, nobody else drives you crazy, you do it yourself, he said.

A lot of people try to control the people and the world around them, and until they realize they can't do that, they are going to have stress, he said.

"You can't control people, but you control how you react to people," he said.

"The greatest power you have is how you react to your environment – circumstances, events and people," he said.

And again, he tries to teach people to deal with the present moment. Too many people try to change the past and worry about the future, he said.

"Live in the present. The past is gone and the future isn't here."

He also tries to get people to "accept

At Shawsheen Rubber, debate is still about odors

By Lisa Boudreau

State health and environmental protection agencies announced last week they agree that smelly emissions coming from Shawsheen Rubber Co. on Andover Street may pose health problems, and that measures must be taken to reduce emissions. State agencies say measures to rectify the problem are proceeding on schedule. But Andover officials say the rubber company isn't moving fast enough.

Since 1943 Shawsheen Rubber has manufactured and applied adhesives to cloth and paper.

The town hints it may take legal action. "Our environmental lawyer is exploring alternatives to preventing emissions," Everett Penney, Andover health director. He declined to comment further "because of the legal options we are considering." However, he mentioned restraining orders and injunctions as possible avenues to pursue.

Tom Arnold, lawyer for Andover's health department, said he is waiting to evaluate the state's "health risk assessment" of the emissions before he supports any legal action.

"The possibility that any harm could occur is not the same as probability that harm will occur," Mr. Arnold said yesterday.

Elaine Krueger, chief of the environmental toxicology bureau for the state Department of Public Health, sent a letter to the town's health department and its lawyer last week stating she agrees with the state Department of Shawsheen Rubber Co.

Environmental Protection's findings earlier this year that "solvent emissions from (Shawsheen Rubber) may result in an increased chance of subchronic and chronic health effects."

When asked this week by the Townsmen what those health risks could be, Ms. Krueger said that prolonged exposure to the emissions — chiefly hexane and toluene — could cause headaches, nausea and increased chances of developing respiratory problems.

Ms. Krueger also stated in the letter that her office has received assurances from other state agencies that progress to reduce emissions is occurring, and "the company was cooperating with DEP's directives" and that "a permanent solution would be achieved within a reasonable time frame."

Mr. Penney said his office has received complaints from neighbors, since the mid 1980s, who say the emissions cause headaches and nausea. He said he still is receiving complaints from residents even though Shawsheen Rubber officials say they are working with the state to rectify the problem.

In 1989 Shawsheen Rubber was fined $18,000 by the state DEP. Since that time Shawsheen Rubber has spent more than $175,000 to make changes at its plant to reduce emissions and comply with state and federal mandates, said Denis Kelley, president of Shawsheen Rubber. Those changes, said Mr. Kelley, have included reformulating adhesive products and eliminating several "outdated" adhesive coating lines, eliminating and redirecting ventilation ductwork, and enclosing equipment to minimize fugitive emissions.

In a written statement released earlier this week, Mr. Kelley said, "Shawsheen Rubber is in complete agreement with the findings of the DPH. Shawsheen has been working with the DEP to develop a comprehensive plan that meets or exceeds all of the recommendations of the DEP."

"Recent news accounts have created the impression that the company has operated without regard to the concerns of our neighbors. As a responsible manufacturer and employer in Massachusetts, Shawsheen has always made every effort to work cooperatively with the state regulatory agencies," he said.

Mr. Kelley added that "the issue, which has been reported as a questionable health matter, is an occasional nuisance odor. The approach endorsed by the DEP and the DPH is professional, responsible, and one that Shawsheen is anxious to move forward on to resolve this matter."

both inside and outside the town and knows the town of Andover.

"I also like the way he conducts himself. There was the right chemistry and attitude for the job," Mr. Stapczynski added.

Mr. Reilly was one of 70 applicants for the job, and one of seven semi-finalists who were interviewed, said Candace Hall, town personnel director. If approved by selectmen Monday night Mr. Reilly will replace former treasurer/collector Mike Muise, who retired earlier this year.

Mr. Reilly's salary has not been established, said Mr. Stapczynski, but it will fall between the high-$40,000 range, which is what Mr. Reilly earned in the school department, and the mid-$50,000 range, which is what Mr. Muise earned at the time of his retirement.

Personal background

Mr. Reilly was raised in Andover. He graduated from Austin Preparatory School in 1975 and from Merrimack College in 1979. He and his wife, Kathleen, live at 7 Summer St.

For the past six years Mr. Reilly has served as the school department's accountant. In January he was named acting business manager when Frank Paul retired from that post.

Before working for the school department, Mr. Reilly worked as an accountant for a semiconductor company from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Stapczynski said Mr. Reilly will begin his new job some time in September after school begins.

"I recognize his value to the school superintendent, the school department and the school system, especially since he has been serving as the acting business manager and accountant," said Mr. Stapczynski.

According to Ms. Hall, no decision has been made yet to begin a search to replace Mr. Reilly as school accountant. The school department currently is interviewing candidates for the business manager position. Mark McQuillan, superintendent of schools, has said at several School Committee meetings in the past that he would support reorganizing the school business office to save money. Dr. McQuillan was on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

School board to interview business manager finalists

By Lisa Boudreau

School Committee members will interview finalists for the school business manager position at their Tuesday, Aug. 10, meeting, which will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the school office building on Whittier Court. That post was vacated in January when Frank Paul retired.

Acting business manager and school accountant, David Reilly was one of the semifinalists for the job, but he has been appointed to be the town's new treasurer/collector. Selectmen will vote on his appointment Monday night.

If Mr. Reilly's appointment is confirmed, he said he will withdraw his candidacy for the school business manager position immediately.

Library director may be named Monday

Memorial Hall Library may have a new director appointed by Monday night, Aug. 9.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said this week that he will ask selectmen to approve his recommendation Monday at their 7:30 p.m. meeting in the town office building on Bartlet Street. The meeting is open to the public.

Mr. Stapczynski would not release the name of his first choice, or say if the person was an in-house applicant. However, he said the person would be at the meeting to answer questions the selectmen may have.

Former director Nancy Jacobson retired this spring after more than 20 years at the library.

Caring to volunteer

The numbers are sad and shocking. Approximately 230 children are reported abused and neglected each day in this state. More than 13,000 of the state's abused children live in foster homes or other community residences.

Some Andover residents are doing something about the situation. And as one of the volunteers, Raymond Swain of Enfield Drive, says, "It's a small contribution, but you get to share in the decision making that helps children."

Imagine a child without an advocate. Some of the abused children must feel that way; or at least they will as they grow older and realize they were left to fend for themselves. They will realize they were without advocates or nurturers when they make bad decisions all of us have to live with.

When adults, in this case volunteers, step in to see that children get a better chance to live in a healthy environment, then children have a shot at receiving the nurturing everyone needs to become a healthy adult.

So we thank the Ray Swains, the Julie Weils, and the seven other Andover volunteers with the Department of Social Services for caring enough to advocate for those who may have inadequate care-takers.

Please write

Do you like to write? Have an opinion you'd like to express? The Townsmen welcomes your letters, which should be no longer than two pages, typed and double spaced. If you can't type, please print.

Letters are due at the Townsmen by Monday at 5 p.m. They should be signed with a name and address. In addition, writers should include a phone number where they can be reached during the day, in case there are questions. It won't be published.

The editor reserves the right to edit letters for space, taste, clarity or libel.

Another way to write an opinion for the paper is to write a guest column. The paper is publishing the best of the guest columns it receives during the summer. One is published on this page today. Guest columns should be two pages, also. Writers should include a short biography at the end of the column. See today's italicized biography for an idea of how to write one.

Mom could lose it with kids home

By Valerie Petrillo

My kids are home for the summer. I mean REALLY home. No summer camp with swimming pools and archery lessons, no soccer or basketball camp, no spending a week at Grandma's, but HOME.

HOME to breathe anonymously into the telephone extension while I'm making a call, HOME to save their biggest fights for when I'm in the bathroom, HOME to complain that there's nothing to do after a four-hour jaunt to Canobie Lake Park.

We do have a camp at home, though. Kitchen camp. With three kids waking up and eating breakfast at different times, breakfast lasts until the first one asks for lunch. Then we start on snacks. Firsts, seconds, thirds on snacks, followed by supper and d-e-s-s-e-r-t that they manage to stretch for an hour past bedtime.

Occasionally I do leave the kitchen to stock and restock the refrigerator. But before we pile into the van, the kids have to make sure they are prepared. That means "Barney" for the baby, nine Barbies and a Cinderella wand for my daughter and a sports cup filled with 37 ounces of soda for my son. It's three blocks to the grocery store.

I always start with high hopes, comparing prices, choosing low-fat foods and pointing out exotica like mangoes and cassavas to the kids. Then the baby tries a balancing act on the cart handle, one kid whines for "chocolate skulls" cereal and the other wants fruit snacks guaranteed to stick to your teeth until you graduate from high school. By the time we get to the last aisle, I'm buying anything I can pull off the shelf without stopping.

Of course, summertime is beach time, although I haven't personally made it to the sand, yet. You know, chairs, towels, blankets, sandpails, lunch, suntan lotion... On my last attempt, my husband and the kids were ready to go home before I'd finished unpacking the car. "But Mom, the sun's going down. Forget about the beach umbrella."

I might not have a tan but I'm determined to get through my summer reading list. It includes Michael Crichton's Rising Sun, James Clavell's Gai-Jin and my favorite, J.C. Penney's back-to-school catalog.

Valerie Petrillo of 7 Carter Lane is a stay-at-home mom with three children, Michael, 8, entering third grade at South School; Noelle, 5, entering kindergarten; and Nicholas, 26 months, entering what his mom calls the terrible 2's.

Three quality town retirees merit story

Editor, Townsmen:

Warm applause for running a big article on the three retiring town employees, Mike Muise, Sam DeSalvo and John Avery.

All three merit the commendation given and all three are fine examples of the quality of our town employees.

Moreover, the whole tone of the interviews and quotations were respectful of both the community and the strong tradition Andover has of fine town government.

As we approach our 350th anniversary (1996), we can take full note of our history of truly responsible town governance. It is a distinctive element of our heritage.

Cheers -- all positive.

LETTERS

She's been through this

Editor, Townsmen:

It was with mixed emotions that I read the lengthy article in the July 22 Andover Townsman concerning the death of James Keating Jr. in July last year. ["Mourning a needless death," page 1.]

The scenario was, of course, all too familiar to me and, I'm certain, another family in Andover who lost their son back in '87. My heart goes out to them, as well as the Keating family, as your article undoubtedly brought back memories even sadder than mine.

The reason for this letter is two fold. I believe the Keating family are trying to send a message to other young people and I laud them for that. I do think, however, that the article neglected to highlight two key issues. Firstly, James was probably aware that the driver was intoxicated yet still chose to ride in the vehicle.

Back in '88, if my memory serves me correctly, members of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) at Andover High School produced, for lack of a better description, an agreement to be signed by both parent and student whereby it was agreed that the student could call the parent at any hour to get a ride home, if the student felt the driver was impaired (by alcohol, etc.) Had James done this, he might be alive today and I hope that SADD is still promoting that agreement.

My second point concerns the use of seat belts. Evidently only one person in that vehicle was wearing a seat belt and he walked away more or less unscathed!

As to the sentence handed out to Mr. Sweet - I guess I have a different view. In the case of the accident in '87, I asked the judge not to sentence the guilty party to a jail term but to require that she work in a rehabilitation hospital with individuals seriously injured as a result of drunk driving accidents. I venture no one working in that environment would ever ever drink and drive again the rest of their life. Peace.

Couple praise DCS program

[The following letter was sent to Peg Campbell of the Department of Community Resources, with a copy to the Townsmen and a request to print it:]

Dear Ms. Campbell:

Our son has been attending the drop-in playground program at the Sanborn School. He is having a wonderful time.

Michelle, Tim and Dave are very caring, fun and nurturing counselors to the children. They communicate professionally and openly with parents. Our 10-year-old can't wait to get to the school every day to participate in the many fun activities that are planned.

Even though our son had a broken foot and was in a cast in the beginning of the program, this did not impede his or the counselors' enthusiasm for a good time.

Every Wednesday the group goes on field trips. On Fridays they have a cookout and every day the ice cream truck comes.

We feel very fortunate that the town of Andover offers such a diverse and reasonably priced summer program for kids. It has certainly been a great way for our son to be with many children who he doesn't see during the school year. Thank you for organizing the playground program and for hiring such a wonderful staff.

RECYCLING

Be responsible: recycle button batteries

By Virginia Cole

Do something positive; recycle rechargeable batteries.

We in Andover can help the environment by recycling rechargeable batteries. It seems to be a big secret, but Waste Management, our recycling contractor, will pick up your rechargeable batteries placed in zip-lock plastic bags next to your recycling blue bin every other week at curbside. These batteries are used in power tools, radios and toys, camcorders, cellular phones and lap-top computers. These products bring new freedom from the limitation of having to be near a power source. With this freedom comes the responsibility to recycle these batteries and protect our environment. It can and should be done.

Cadmium and mercury are the metals in the rechargeable batteries that are of the most concern to environmentalists. Mercury is a persistent toxic metal that does not disappear in the incinerator. Cadmium is used as an anode material in nickel-cadmium batteries. The inhalation of cadmium dust or fumes is toxic. Cadmium is also considered a carcinogen. European studies have correlated the dangers of cadmium in the air or in ground water. Cadmium is found in flu ash or ash left in the incinerator, depending on the type of incinerator and scrubbers used and the temperature of the burning. Ash in the air gets to us; ash disposed of by the incinerator may get into ground water somewhere.

Rather than arguing the merits of our incinerator or others, just keep mercury and cadmium out. Recycle rechargeable batteries.

Batteries collected by Waste Management and Andover recyclers are shown by Carolyn Dann of Waste Watch Center. Both rechargeable batteries and button batteries can be recycled. The more common household battery cannot be recycled at this time.

Blood drive set

A consortium of local organizations invites the residents and neighbors of Andover, North Andover and Lawrence to a Friends and Neighbors blood drive, Monday, Aug. 23, from 2 to 8 p.m. at Old Town Hall at 20 Main St.

The blood drive's supporters encourage their friends and neighbors to join this grass-roots, multi-community effort to donate 200 units of blood for area patients. As of this writing, supporters include the town of Andover, Perfecto's Cafe in Andover, churches in Andover, North Andover and Lawrence, Andover Savings Bank, CVS and small businesses in Andover, Andover High School students and the Merrimack Valley Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Perfecto's Cafe will provide bagels and muffins and the blood drive facility will be air-conditioned.

Donors must be in good health, at least 18 years old (17 with a signed American Red Cross parental guardian consent form), weigh at least 105 pounds and have no history of exposure to hepatitis or the AIDS virus. There is no upper age limit for donors and most medications are acceptable.

For more information or to schedule a donation appointment, call the American Red Cross at 1-800-922-4376. Volunteers are needed to help at the drive; those interested should call the same phone number to help out.

Tisbert, Quattlebaum show strong pitching for Andover Blue

By Rick Harrison

Strong pitching performances by Brian Tisbert and Hugh Quattlebaum enabled Andover Blue to finish the regular season impressively and win its quarterfinal round playoff game in recent Suburban Pony League action.

Quattlebaum (2-0) produced the team's first complete-game performance of the season, firing a five-hitter as Blue eliminated visiting Lowell 6-3 in their one-game playoff opener Monday afternoon at Andover High.

A strong relief effort by righthander Brian Tisbert (3-0), who scattered six hits, struck out five and yielded just one run in five innings, boosted Blue past Andover Gold by the same 6-3 score last weekend in the regular season finale for both teams at Andover High.

The two victories gave Blue a sweep of the season series against both opponents, including an 8-4 win earlier this summer over archrival Gold and previous 12-3 and 11-9 decisions against Lowell.

The Gold triumph also nailed down second place in the highly-competitive North Division of the SPL. Blue finished with a 17-2 regular season record, one point behind defending league champ Methuen which closed at 17-1-1 and handed Blue its only two defeats (10-7 and 10-2).

Lowell was third in the division at 15-4 and Gold finished fourth.

Methuen almost handed Blue first place on the final day, but managed to push across an unearned run in the top of the seventh and gun down a Lowell player at the plate in the bottom of the inning to pull out a 6-5 victory in Lowell.

Blue's victory over Lowell advanced the locals to a best-of-3 semifinal round series against South Division champ Medford 2, which was scheduled to start last night at Hickey Park in Medford.

Big George Secchiaroli (3-2) was scheduled to pitch for Andover Blue, which defeated Medford 10-5 in their only regular season battle.

Game two is tomorrow night at Andover High (5:30 p.m.), with game three Saturday morning (if necessary) at 10 a.m. in Medford.

The best-of-3 championship series will be played next Monday, Wednesday and Friday (if necessary), with the other finalist emerging from among playoff qualifiers Methuen, the Reading Astros and the Reading Rockets.

Andover Blue 6

Lowell 3

(Playoff Quarterfinal)

Blue (18-2 overall) grabbed a 3-0 lead after three innings, but was forced to break a 3-3 tie with two runs in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Righty Hugh Quattlebaum threw 97 pitches, striking out two and walking four, as four-time league champion Blue survived the dangerous one-game knockout.

He handled the middle of the strong Lowell lineup easily, holding Mark Byrne, Joe Durkin and Dan MacLaughlin hitless in nine trips.

Andover, which pounded out nine hits against two Lowell hurlers, grabbed a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first.

Quattlebaum singled, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. Brian Tisbert walked and stole second. George Secchiaroli walked to load the bases, Ted Witman walked to force home a run, and Peter Katsunas reached on an error to plate the second tally.

In the Blue third, Jack Glazebrook singled, Tisbert walked and Secchiaroli dumped a run-scoring double down the right field line.

Lowell rallied to tie it with three runs in the fourth, the key strokes a one-out double by Garrett Gillick and two-out RBI singles by catcher John Florence and losing pitcher Brian Mead.

Blue regained the lead in the fifth frame with two runs. Ryan Games walked, stole second and third, and eventually scored when Glazebrook (single) got caught in a rundown. Tisbert then drew his third walk, stole second and third, and crossed on Secchiaroli's single.

In the sixth Katsunas doubled and scored then final insurance run when Chris Kearns' infield grounder produced a throwing error.

Lowell threatened in the seventh when Dave McNeil lashed a two-out double and Mark Byrne walked, bringing the tying run to the plate. But Quattlebaum bore down to end the game with a strikeout.

Defensive standouts for Blue were shortstop Tisbert, who handled six chances flaw-

Residents' son runs 100-mile race

By Don Staruk

David Chechik, 29, of Salem, Mass., son of Paula and Howard Chechik, of 32 Farrwood Drive, said he had only one thought while running a 100-mile race in Vermont last weekend.

"Getting it over with," Mr. Chechik said Tuesday.

The run was "worth it" and "great," according to Mr. Chechik, but also said that he wasn't thinking about doing it again anytime soon.

"I just want to be able to think about getting a pair of wing tips on," Mr. Chechik said.

He and 10 others from the Gillie's Athletic Club in Topsfield took part in the event, which followed a single 100-mile loop through the foothills of the Green Mountains. The last four miles were almost all uphill, which hurt, Mr. Chechik said.

He ran harder on the downhill and flat stretches and "power walked" the uphill to conserve energy. His goal was to maintain a 12-minute pace and he held that for about 75 miles, but slowed to about 15-minute miles for the last 20-25 miles. He ate and drank constantly during the race.

The race started at 4 a.m. Saturday and Mr. Chechik finished after 2 a.m. on Sunday, 22 hours and 32 minutes later. It took the winner more than 17 hours to finish the course and runners were limited to 30 hours. Ten of the 11 teammates who accompanied Mr. Chechik finished the course. One dropped out with knee problems.

"I thought it was a tremendous accomplishment; the biggest accomplishment of my running career," Mr. Chechik said.

A former manager at the Andover Inn, Mr. Chechik is now in charge of the executive dining room for The Boston Company Inc. in Boston. He ran track at Andover High School and graduated in 1985. He ran long distance in college and continued running until he had knee surgery six years ago.

He started running again in January of 1992 and has since run eight marathons, including the Clarence DeMar Marathon in New Hampshire (3:07), the New York City Marathon on Nov. 1 (3:09), a 50-mile ultra-marathon in Punxsawtawney, Pa., the Bangkok Marathon in Thailand in November and the Boston Marathon this past April, which he finished in 3:16.

Haverhill's rally knocks Andover American Majors out of tournament

By Rick Harrison

Haverhill rallied to score four runs in the bottom of the fifth inning, overcoming a 4-1 deficit en route to a 5-4 victory over the Andover American Major 11- to 12-year-old All-Stars in their District 14 Little League Tournament loser's bracket semifinal game at Poulin Field in Tewksbury recently.

The loss ousted Andover American from the double-elimination tournament, after Manager Kevin Rourke's team had made a gallant bid to climb out of the loser's bracket with five straight victories.

The Americans dropped a heartbreaking 8-7 decision in eight innings to eventual district champ Tewksbury National in their tourney opener, before reeling off consecutive victories over Lowell Oliveria (10-7), Billerica National (19-0), Lowell Callery (14-1), Tewksbury American (13-5) and Lawrence Central (9-2) in do-or-die survival games.

The demise of the American Major All-Stars meant that Andover did not have at least one team in a District 14 division final for the first time in eight years.

The Andover National and American 11-12's won six straight District championships from 1986-91, with the Nationals continuing on to Sectional, State and Eastern Regional titles en route to the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa. in 1988.

Last year the Andover Junior 13's captured District, Sectional and State championships before being halted in the final round of the Eastern Regionals, one victory shy of a trip to Michigan.

Four other Andover All-Star squads exited the tourney earlier this month, the Junior 13's going 2-2 in their division, the Andover National Major and Andover National Senior 14-15's both finishing 1-2, and the Andover American Senior 14-15's dropping two straight.

District 14 champions crowned this summer were Tewksbury National in the Major 11-12 Division, Chelmsford in the Junior 13 and Billerica American in the Senior 14-15.

It took five games for Andover to win best-of-three series against Arlington Post 8 teases Reading before going on to final eight

By Rick Harrison

Harry Houdini could have taken a lesson from the Andover Post 8 Legion baseball team, which escaped elimination from the playoffs time-after-time in a dramatic best-of-three marathon opening-round playoff series against Arlington Post 39 that took five games to complete.

The Zone 8A champs then spotted Zone 5A titlist Reading Post 62 leads of 6-1 and 8-5 in the first game of their best-of-three second-round State Tournament preliminary, before exploding for seven runs in the top of the eighth inning en route to a wild 14-9 decision at Reading High's Morton Field on Monday night.

Andover, 14-5-3 overall, won the second game against Reading Tuesday night, 15-11. An 11-11 tie was broken in the eighth inning by a Jeff Lembo bunt that produced two runs. Matt Wolcott broke the game open with a two-run single later on in the eighth.

Post 8 will play fellow final-eight contender Northampton Saturday at 5 p.m. All games are at Pino Field in Milford.

This is the second straight year that Andover Post 8 has qualified for the State Tournament.

The Andover-Arlington series was a classic.

The teams needed five days and five games to decide it, including two 11-inning ties that had to be replayed. In 49 innings the rivals finished just one run apart, Andover scoring 27 and Arlington 26.

Post 8 was on the brink of losing the series several times, particularly in the first three games, and needed wins in the last two games to advance.

The first game ended in a 6-6 tie, Arlington won the second game, 7-4, and the third game was a 7-7 stalemate.

Andover then pulled its Houdini act, unlocking the handcuffs and escaping from the submerged trunk with series-clinching victories in game four, 7-4, and game five, 3-2.

"How close can you get?" asked Andover Manager Joe Iarrobino rhetorically. "Arlington is an excellent team. They hit the ball well and didn't make an error until midway through the fourth game.

"It took our kids awhile to get into the series. But after the third game they were into it emotionally," said Iarrobino. "There was some bench-jockeying back and forth, and it was a mistake on Arlington's part because they woke up the sleeping giant.

"We played well defensively, got the key hits and rose to the occasion with some great pitching at the end.

"Justin (Hesenius) came back in the deciding game on three days rest and was at the top of his game," noted Manager Iarrobino. "He had been struggling with his curveball, but that night (3-2 win) the curve and cut fastball were as good as they've ever been. He got the big outs.

Everyone contributed for us. Gus (Quattlebaum), Toby (Guzowski), Matt Wolcott and Jeff Lembo hit well. I can't say enough about the job (catcher) Paul Allard did, and Todd Murray came through with some excellent pitching.

"Both teams deserve a lot of credit. Neither team would die. We couldn't stamp Arlington out and they couldn't stamp us out."

Injury Report

Post 8 suffered a pair of injuries earlier this week, pitcher Todd Murray hit in the nose by a thrown ball at practice and catcher Paul Allard twisting a knee when he stepped in a hole chasing a foul pop in the opening game of the Reading series.

Both players were expected back in the lineup without missing any appreciable time.

Andover 14 Reading 9

Strapped for pitching because of the marathon Arlington series, Post 8 managed to survive on the combined efforts of starter Matt Marvin (2.1 innings), 16-year-old Alex Marshall who made his Legion debut on the mound (3.2 innings), and Matt Wolcott who mopped up effectively.

"I told Alex (Marshall) the day before the game he'd be in relief," noted Iarrobino. "I could tell he was nervous, but he went in and did a very creditable job."

He yielded five hits and four runs to potent Reading, but kept Post 8 in contention until the seven-run eighth-inning explosion.

Wolcott (1-0) blanked Post 62 on one hit over the final two innings, fanning one and walking none.

"We hit the ball a ton. Gus Quattlebaum and Wolcott really unloaded," said Manager Iarrobino. "We had three key ingredients: good defense, timely hitting and good relief pitching."

Andover exploded for 17 hits overall, Wolcott going 4-for-5 and Quattlebaum 4-for-6 while Mike Sullivan, Justin Hesenius and Toby Guzowski added two safeties each.

The teams traded first-inning runs, Andover scoring when Wolcott clouted his first home run of the season (to straightaway center).

Reading built a 6-1 lead after the third, but Post 8 closed to 6-5 in the fourth as Todd Harris singled, Alex Marshall drilled a two-run homer (his first), Sullivan reached on an error, Wolcott singled and Quattlebaum ripped a two-run single.

Reading made it 8-5 with two runs in the home half, but in the Andover seventh Hesenius doubled, Guzowski singled, Harris lofted a sac-fly, and Jeff Lembo stroked an RBI single to trim the deficit to 8-7.

In the seven-run eighth Sullivan singled, stole second and scored on Wolcott's single. Quattlebaum singled, Guzowski laced an RBI single, Paul Allard walked, Lembo walked to force home a run, Bob Daley was hit by a pitch to force home a run, Sullivan reached on an error with two more runs crossing, Wolcott was hit by a pitch and Quattlebaum slugged an RBI double.

The game was halted by darkness and impending thundershowers after eight innings.

Allard twisted his knee chasing a foul popup in the late innings, and Jeff Hesenius finished the game behind the plate.

Andover 6 Arlington 6

The first of the two tie games saw Andover battle back from a 5-1 deficit in the third inning, and match Post 39's 11th-inning run with a dramatic rally in the bottom of the stanza before darkness finally called a halt to the action.

Rain fell intermittently throughout the game, and Post 8's eight-day layoff showed in the rustiness of its play.

Although Justin Hesenius yielded just three hits and fanned 10 in seven innings, he was far from razor-sharp as he walked 10 Arlington batters and threw 147 pitches.

Todd Murray worked the final four innings, scattering three hits while whiffing three and walking two. The only run he allowed, in the 11th, was unearned.

Arlington scored twice in the top of the first when Bob McLaughlin tripled home Jeff Russell (walk) and then scored on an error. Hesenius then walked two more batters before working free.

Andover came back with a run in the bottom half as Post 39 starter Bill Christopoulos also struggled, walking Matt Wolcott, Hesenius and Tob Guzowski before misplaying Todd Harris's grounder.

Two more walks, Rick Vallarelli's two-run triple and an overthrow gave Arlington its 5-1 edge in the third.

Post 8 got one back in the bottom half when Wolcott ripped a leadoff triple to right and scored on Guzowski's two-out triple to right-center.

In the Andover fourth Paul Allard and Jeff Lembo lashed back-to-back leadoff singles, Wolcott was hit by a pitch to load the bases, and Gus Quattlebaum was also plunked by a pitch to force home Allard.

Post 8 trimmed the deficit to 5-4 in the sixth when Lembo belted a one-out triple and scored on Mike Sullivan's suicide squeeze bunt.

Arlington had two aboard on walks in the top of the seventh, but a pickoff helped Hesenius out of trouble.

Andover tied it 5-5 in the bottom of the eighth when Todd Harris drilled a leadoff double down the left field line, stole third and continued home on the catcher's overthrow.

Post 8 went down 1-2-3 in both the ninth and 10th, while Arlington threatened in both stanzas. In the ninth McLaughlin spanked a two-out single, stole second and stole third before Murray fanned the next batter. In the 10th an infield error and walk created another dangerous situation which Murray again escaped with a K.

Arlington scored in the top of the 11th as Jeff Russell singled, McLaughlin walked, Mark Kalivas beat out an infield hit to load the bases, and Christopoulos lofted a sacrifice fly.

Andover survived, however, when Lembo was issued a one-out walk, stole second, took third on Mike Sullivan's infield grounder and scored on a wild pitch.

Lembo led Andover's eight-hit attack with a perfect 4-for-4 including a near-cycle single, double and triple.

Arlington 7 Andover 4

Post 39 pushed Andover to the brink of elimination with this victory at Andover High, breaking a 2-2 tie with back-to-back two-run innings in the sixth and seventh before quelling a Post 8 rally in the bottom of the ninth.

Rival pitchers Matt Marvin (4-2) and Greg Tierney sailed through the first three innings, each permitting one scratch hit and no runs.

With two outs in the Arlington fourth a hit batsman, Post 8 infield error and two-run triple by Mark Kalivas gave the visitors a 2-0 lead.

Andover retaliated in its half of the inning, scoring twice as Matt Wolcott was hit by a pitch, Gus Quattlebaum singled to right, Toby Guzowski walked, Todd Harris grounded into a fielder's choice and Quattlebaum scored on the delayed end of a double steal and botched rundown.

Kalivas hammered his second run-scoring triple and came home on a throwing error as Post 39 moved ahead 4-2 in the sixth, and it went to 6-2 in the seventh as Bill Christopoulos singled home Jeff Russell (walk) and Don Peters (single) scored on a throwing error.

Andover was quiet until the eighth, when it loaded the bases after two were out on a pair of hit batsmen (Wolcott, Quattlebaum) and a walk to Justin Hesenius. The threat went by the boards on a grounder to second base.

Arlington notched its final run in the top of the ninth as Bob McLaughlin singled, Christopoulos reached on Andover's seventh error, Rick Vallarelli drew a one-out walk, and Kalivas hoisted a sacrifice fly.

Post 8 did some stirring in the bottom of the ninth, after Todd Harris walked and the next two batters were retired. Alex Marshall laced a pinch-hit RBI single to the opposite field, Mike Sullivan dropped a perfect bunt single down the third base line, and Matt Wolcott plated Marshall with a single to center.

However, with two runners aboard and the tying run at the plate reliever Don Peters ended the game with a strikeout on a 3-2 pitch.

Quattlebaum led the seven-single attack with a pair of hits, while defensively first baseman Toby Guzowski prevented several other throwing errors and third baseman Matt Wolcott snuffed an Arlington rally with an unassisted double play in a bases-loaded situation.

Andover 7 Arlington 7

The second tie game featured a strong comeback by Arlington, which trailed 7-2 in the seventh inn ing before rallying.

Post 8 moved ahead 2-0 in the second when Jeff Lembo reached on a fielder's choice, Paul Allard was hit by a pitch, both advanced on a wild pitch, Lembo crossed on Todd Murray's infield out and Mike Sullivan plated the second run with a suicide squeeze bunt.

Arlington tied the game with two runs in the third, before Toby Guzowski moved the locals back in front with a fourth-inning leadoff home run (his first) to right field.

Todd Harris drew a one-out walk in the fifth, Matt Wolcott singled and Justin Hesenius clubbed a two-run double to make it 5-2.

In the top of the seventh Hesenius added a two-out, two-run single, rescuing Sullivan and Wolcott who had walked.

Andover stater Todd Murray breezed through the middle innings, then yielded an unearned run in the seventh.

Post 8 had singles by Paul Allard, Murray (bunt) and Todd Harris in the eighth, but squandered the opportunity when a runner was thrown out at the plate.

Arlington scored twice in the eighth and twice more in the bottom of the ninth to pull even, 7-7, and threatened in the 10th on a one-out single and error before reliever Gus Quattlebaum retired the side.

Andover's bid to win it in the 11th came when Todd Harris was hit by a pitch, Matt Wolcott singled, and a run was cut down at the plate trying to score on a flyball out to center. Walks to Hesenius and Guzowski followed before a strikeout ended the stanza.

Matt Wolcott finished the game 3-for-5, while Hesenius and Guzowski added two safeties each to the 13-hit attack.

Andover 7 Arlington 4

Post 8 squared the series as Gus Quattlebaum (2-1) pitched 7.1 solid innings in game 4, permitting only five hits and five runs while walking none.

Matt Wolcott worked the final 1.2 frames, surrendering two hits and a pair of unearned runs while walking one, hitting one batter and whiffing two en route to his

Andover Gold ends season with 9-9-1 record

By Rick Harrison

Andover Gold reeled off four straight wins before dropping recent games to North Division playoff qualifiers Methuen Police, Lowell and Andover Blue, as AG completed its 1993 Suburban Pony League season with a 9-9-1 overall record.

Gold had retained an outside shot at a playoff berth until the loss to Lowell.

The victories were all convincing ones over the Medford Expos (15-5), Winthrop (16-1), Wilmington (15-4) and Stoneham (10-2).

North champ and defending league titlist Methuen came from behind to beat AG, 8-4, after trailing 4-1 late in the game, while Lowell used a four-run fifth to key its 13-6 triumph at the West Middle School field and Blue registered a 6-3 win behind Brian Tisbert's strong relief pitching.

Andover Gold 15

Medford Expos 5

Mark O'Sullivan went the distance on the mound, allowing five hits, and Gold put the game on ice early with nine runs in the bottom of the first and five more in the third at Andover High.

The contest was shortened to six innings because of a rain delay.

Big hits in the AG first were a three-run triple by O'Sullivan and a two-run single by Jon Adams.

Dave Salafia, who had belted his first home run of the season in the previous game against the North Andover Knights, made it three in two games as he clouted a three-run homer in the third and a solo shot in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Salafia, O'Sullivan and Keith Grant finished with three hits each, Grant clouting a three-run triple in the first, and singles were added by Mark Tropeano and Joe Maglio.

Gold reeled off a pair of 6-4-3 double plays, both going from shortstop Tropeano to second baseman Steve Vickers to first baseman Maglio.

Andover Gold 16

Winthrop 1

Dave Salafia turned in his finest pitching performance of the season, throwing a perfect game for five innings (retiring 15 straight batters) before surrendering a hit and walking a batter in the sixth.

He left after six innings of shutout ball with a one-hitter, seven strikeouts and one walk.

Mark O'Sullivan mopped up in the seventh, when Winthrop broke through for its lone run without benefit of a hit.

Gold took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first at Winthrop High as Salafia reached on an error, O'Sullivan lashed an RBI single, stole second and scored on Steve Vickers' single.

It stayed that way until Gold registered four unearned runs in the fifth, and then a 10-run explosion in the sixth featured RBI hits by Salafia, Dan Gosselin, Vickers and Jon Adams.

Steve Vickers finished the game with four singles, O'Sullivan had two hits and Mark Tropeano added a safety.

Defensive standouts were Brad Batchelder in right field and O'Sullivan at third base.

Andover Gold 15

Wilmington 4

Keith Grant was the individual star of this show, driving home six runs with a near-cycle single, double and triple at the North Intermediate School field in Wilmington.

Lefthander Dan Gosselin pitched the first three innings and Brad Batchelder the final two, the game abbreviated to five frames by darkness.

Gold put together three big innings, scoring five runs in the top of the first, six in the third and four more in the fourth.

Joe Maglio delivered two hits and two RBI, Andy Henderson and Pat Sharkey laced two safeties each, and singles were added by Lou Capobianco, Steve Vickers and Jon Adams.

Playing well in the field were second baseman Randy Romano and catcher Capobianco.

Andover Gold 10

Stoneham 2

Righthander Mark O'Sullivan pitched no-hit ball through five innings, surrendered a two-out single in the sixth, and left after six frames with a one-hitter, six strikeouts and three walks.

Dan Gosselin kept Stoneham off the board in the bottom of the seventh at Stoneham High, although he did issue a pair of walks.

Gold broke the game wide open with eight runs in the third. Jon Adams singled, Mark Tropeano singled, Pat Sharkey and Dave Salafia ripped RBI singles, O'Sullivan spanked a two-run double, and Brad Batchelder capped the uprising with a two-run single.

Scott Ciruso completed the assault with a two-run single in the fifth frame.

Adams finished the game a perfect 3-for-3 while Andy Henderson, Pat Sharkey and O'Sullivan contributed two hits each.

Gold turned a pair of unusual double plays.

The first was unassisted by center fielder Dave Salafia, who caught a ball at full gallop just behind second base and tagged the bag for the forceout. The game ended with right fielder Brad Batchelder snagging a fly ball and doubling a runner off first base with a strike to Mark O'Sullivan.

Keith Grant also played well defensively at third base.

North Andover 9

Andover Gold 5

The Knights grabbed an 8-0 lead before Gold got started, the visitors scoring two runs in the third and six more in the fourth.

AG fought back with two in the bottom of the fourth and three in the fifth, but it wasn't enough.

Dave Salafia had two hits, including a three-run homer in the fifth, while Brad Batchelder, Andy Henderson and Mark O'Sullivan contributed two singles apiece.

Salafia pitched the first three innings and was followed to the mound by Brad Batchelder, Mark Tropeano and Andy Henderson.

Haverhill's rally knocks out Andover

Tewksbury National went undefeated after nudging Andover American in the opener, finishing 5-0 and knocking off defending champ Haverhill 11-4 in the title game before being beaten 4-1 by Wakefield in the State Sectionals.

The Chelmsford 13's, who handed Andover its first loss (7-3), also went undefeated in the district (3-0) and continued on to the State final with victories over Swampscott, 3-1, East Boston, 5-2, and Rockland, 6-3. Chelmsford was ousted by Auburn, 6-2, in last weekend's State championship game.

The Billerica American Seniors won the district with a 4-1 record, but then dropped a 12-2 decision to Swampscott in their Sectional opener.

Haverhill 5 Andover American 4
One bad inning cost the Americans against eventual district finalist Haverhill.

Righthander Matt Drizen pitched very well for the locals, leaving after four innings with a 4-1 lead. He surrendered just one hit and one run, walking six and striking out four.

The walks are what eventually led to his being lifted from the game.

"We had Matt on a pitch count and he had thrown 85 through four innings," explained Manager Kevin Rourke. "Obviously he was pitching well, but he had done a lot of throwing in the tournament the previous two weeks. We (Rourke and assistant Mike Hanigan) didn't want to hurt Matt's arm or jeopardize his future so we took him out."

Sean Sughrue went the distance on the mound for Haverhill, which later beat South

Lawrence West 11-5 in the loser's bracket final and won six straight to reach the championship round against Tewksbury National.

Sughrue permitted seven hits in six innings, striking out seven and walking three.

Andover American, which scored 76 runs in seven games, took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Chris Rawlinson singled, and Wholey walked. Bob

Wholey crossed on a Haverhill error.

Haverhill tied it 1-1 in the third, but Andover retaliated with three runs in the top of the fourth.

Once again Wholey was the catalyst with a leadoff single. Tim Witman belted an RBI double, and Kevin Barry's infield out rescued Witman.

Matt Drizen started the rally again with a single. Christian Semper singled and, although it wasn't a planned play, he got caught in a rundown which allowed Drizen to race home with the final run.

Haverhill won it with the four-run fifth-inning uprising, the key strokes a two-run homer by Evan Prescott and run-scoring double by Matt Schena.

The Andover Americans, who had baserunners in each of the first four innings, went down 1-2-3 in both the fifth and sixth.

Ryan Hanigan added a single and Steve Arsenault a bunt single to the locals' attack.

"It was a disappointing loss," said Manager Rourke. "But we took the kids for pizza and an hour after the game they all seemed to have recovered."

Post 8 teases Reading before going on to final eight second save of the season.

Quattlebaum breezed through the first seven innings, tossing three-hit shutout ball while facing just 22 batters (one over the minimum) and retiring nine straight and 15 of 16 during one stretch.

Andover batted around and took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first at Spy Pond Field.

Mike Sullivan banged a leadoff single, stole second and scored on Quattlebaum's single to left. Justin Hesenius walked, Todd Harris was hit by a pitch to load the bases, and Brian Flanagan ripped a two-run single.

Paul Allard was also hit by a pitch but the locals left the bases loaded.

In the fourth Sullivan beat out a bunt single, moved to second on a balk and raced home on Matt Wolcott's single.

Post 8 made it 5-0 in the fifth with an unearned run, as Hesenius reached on an error, stole second, took third on another balk and scored on a passed ball.

Jeff Lembo drew a one-out walk in the sixth, stole second and rambled across on Wolcott's second RBI single of the game.

Arlington chased Quattlebaum and made it interesting with four runs in the bottom of the eighth, parlaying three singles, one walk and a pair of Andover errors.

Post 8 added an insurance run in the ninth as Alex Marshall walked, and circled the bases on Brian Flanagan's triple. Flanagan was cut down at the plate trying to stretch the hit to a home run.

Post 39 put two runners aboard in the bottom of the ninth but also had a man nailed at home.

Flanagan ignited the 10-hit attack with two singles and a triple while Sullivan, Wolcott and Quattlebaum contributed two safeties each.

Andover 3 Arlington 2

Justin Hesenius won his fifth game of the summer, as Andover took a 3-0 lead in the sixth and held on for the series-clinching victory.

Hesenius pitched eight strong innings, surrendering six hits while striking out eight and walking only two.

He had a no-hitter through four innings and a one-hitter through six.

Post 8 had little success itself with Arlington starter Jeff Russell in the first four frames, managing only a pair of harmless singles by Matt Wolcott in the first and Jeff Lembo (bunt) in the bottom of the third at Andover High.

Andover drew first blood in the fifth when Brian Flanagan hammered his second triple in two games, and scored on Paul Allard's squeeze bunt. Jeff Lembo followed with a double and Mike Sullivan walked, but complete-game pitcher Russell escaped further trouble with a strikeout.

In the sixth Gus Quattlebaum walked, Toby Guzowski laid down a one-out bunt single, and the winning runs were chased across on consecutive RBI singles by Todd Harris and Flanagan.

Never-say-die Arlington broke Hesenius' shutout bid in the seventh on a run-scoring double by Jeff Tierney.

Post 39 caused some anxious moments in the eighth, stringing together three singles for its second run before a groundout to shortstop Todd Harris ended the inning with the tying and go-ahead runners aboard.

Matt Marvin picked up his first save by retiring Arlington 1-2-3 in the top of the ninth, registering the final out himself on a comebacker to the mound.

Flanagan and Lembo led the seven-hit attack with two safeties each.

Laura Orlando controlled first base with a 1-2-3 innings in the third with throws from Lynn Mazza, Sarah Muller and Megan Roth. Indians win Town Championship

By Rick Harrison

After a slow start that saw them win just one of their first four games, the Andover Senior League Indians came on like gangbusters to win the 1993 Town Championship earlier this summer.

Manager Dan Moynihan's club disregarded its shaky 1-1-2 start to win 13 of its last 14 games, including a perfect 4-0 record in the playoffs that culminated in a sweep of the Expos in the best-of-3 final series at the Andover High Junior varsity field.

The Indians, 14-2-2 overall, won the league's Division A regular season title with a 10-2-2 record.

The team of 14- and 15-year-old boys battled back from a 6-1 deficit to eliminate the Red Sox 8-6 in the first round of the playoffs, a one-game knockout, and then ousted the Giants in a wild 20-16 semifinal round triumph.

In the Town finals against the B Division champ Expos, the Indians opened with an 8-5 victory in eight innings before sealing it with a convincing 9-2 sweep-completing win.

Moynihan directed the Indians with no official assistant coaches, but credited "a lot of the parents for their support and help throughout the season."

Following are key statistics on each of the 12 team members (listed alphabetically):

Jeff Arleque: Jeff came alive in the playoffs with three hits, including a double, and two RBI.

Jeff Bellistri: Jeff finished the regular season with a .351 batting average and was undefeated as a pitcher.

Brad Croteau: Brad had a .415 on-base percentage for the season and contributed a number of key hits and RBI.

Tom DiLiegro: Tom was a steady defensive catcher and his two-run homer in the eighth inning keyed the 8-5 first-game triumph over the Expos in the final series.

Kevin Farrahar: Kevin had a .500 on-base percentage during the season, and helped key the come-from-behind playoff victory over the Red Sox with two hits and an outstanding catch in the out-

Jack Glazebrook: Jack hit .457 for the season, was a standout pitcher and showed excellent versatility with strong play at catcher and shortstop.

Josh Hoerner: Josh batted .360, had an on-base percentage of .500 and played well defensively both at third base and in the outfield.

Joe Jelson: Joe had a tremendous second half of the season to finish with a .500 batting average and .620 on-base percentage. He also played well defensively at first base.

Mark Langone: Mark was the champs' top pitcher with a perfect 7-0 record and 2.56 earned run average. He also batted .500 and led the team in RBI with 18 in 18 games.

Henry Matos: Henry posted an on-base percentage of .400 and was a top defensive player in the outfield and at third base.

Mark McGarry: Mark finished with a .348 on-base percentage and was most valuable to the champs because of his versatility in playing first base, second base, third base, shortstop and the outfield at different times during the season.

Jim Moran: Jim was a terrific defensive outfielder and also contributed a number of clutch base hits throughout the season.

The Blue Dolphins pulled out with great defense including Katie Rogers' catch of long fly ball to end the fourth inning. Robin Patti, Jessica Taylor, Rachel Hartman, Liz Connors, Danielle Castignetti and Jenny Ambromade made solid defensive plays. Sisters Katie and Amy Herlihy, first base successfully executed the game ending out. Colleen Bateson, Cara Chiaraluce, Morgan Jacobson, Katie Witman and Becky Maddox provided the offense.

Cheesers 17 - Braves 11

Rachel Alpert started strong for the Cheesers with a three-run triple in the first inning. The key defensive play was Jessica Birtles' throw to Christine Sherry. Laura Stone, Lynn McCumber and Sharon Hemenway also contributed to the win.

The Braves had solid hitting from Kerry Nugent and Sarah Lochman. Ashley Dougherty made a great catch and tag at first. Megan Ellis threw to Lindsay Hanna for the out at second base. Lindsey Hartwell and Katie Buckley played well.

Green Gators 22 - Cheesers 10

Jill Oppenheim dominated the offensive going 5 for 5 including three home runs for the Green Gators. Danielle Barbato, Maureen McConville, Susie Moffet and Michelle Daniels also contributed to the win.

Jessica Ostrowski had two key defensive plays for the Cheesers and Siobhan Landry's fielding closed the second and sixth innings.

Red 21 - White 20

The Red pulled the win out with a sixth-inning rally. The White loaded the bases in the seventh inning but Danielle St. Jean's solid defensive plays left the runners stranded. The key defensive play for the Red was made by Merinda Pattollo who caught a pop up and tagged the runner at second base. The offensive was led by Danielle St. Jean's three hits and Tara Cataldo, Sarah O'Brien, Susan Provencher and Merinda Pattollo.

Red 31 - Green 10

The Red offensive was led by Laura Pelletier's five hits and Casey Timmons, Susan Provencher, Amy Davidson, and Michelle King four hits apiece. Danielle St. Jean pitched a first-inning no hitter. Amy Davidson executed a beautiful double play catching a line drive and tagging third to complete the play. Noelle Sannella, Katlyn Nugent and Sarah Provencher also contributed to the win.

Danvers 20 - Andover 8

Catcher Viki Pierce executed three spectacular outs at home plus an outstanding play to Lynn Mazza at third base. Shannon Breen and Sarah Muller had a run down for the third out in the third inning. Michelle Langone at right field successfully caught a hard-hit foul ball for the third out in the fourth. Charlotte Muller was strong on first base. Singles were hit by Noelle Blank (2), Laura Orlando, Shannon Breen, Michelle Carpentier, Viki Pierce, Julie Litzenger, Caroline Torrisi, Sarah Muller and Kim McKew.

lessly, third baseman Kearn and catcher Ted Witman. Dan MacLaughlan played some slick shortstop for Lowell as well.

George Secchiaroli and Jack Glazebrook finished with two hits each, while Witman and Andy Torrisi added singles.

Blue stole 11 bases, including three by Tisbert and two each by Glazebrook and Ryan Games.

Andover Blue 6
Andover Gold 3

Blue, which also beat Winthrop 10-5 last week, made the most of its opportunities against Gold lefty starter Dan Gosselin and reliever Mark O'Sullivan.

Gosselin worked the first 4.1 innings and yielded only three hits. But three walks, two hit batsmen and three Gold errors didn't help his cause.

O'Sullivan surrendered just a bunt single in his 1.2 innings, but a throwing error enabled Blue to register its fourth unearned run in the bottom of the sixth stanza.

Chris Kearn, bothered recently by a back injury, pitched the first two innings for Blue before giving way to Tisbert (3-0) who left six AG runners stranded in scoring position during his stint.

Gold left 13 runners on base in the game.

AG took a 2-0 lead in the first when Dave Salafia lined a two-out single off the third baseman's glove, Mark O'Sullivan was hit by a pitch, both runners advanced on a balk, and consecutive RBI singles were lashed by DH Steve Vickers and catcher Keith Grant.

Blue got one run back in the bottom half as Jack Glazebrook and Hugh Quattlebaum were both hit by pitches, worked a double steal, and Brian Tisbert lofted a sacrifice fly to center.

Gold averted further trouble by alertly appealing a tag play at second base for an out.

AG left runners at second and third in the second inning after walks to Brad Batchelder and Andy Henderson.

Blue moved ahead 3-2 in the second as Ted Witman singled to center, Peter Kaltsunas walked, Chris Kearn bunted them along, and Andy Marshall ripped a two-run double down the left field line.

Gold threatened again in the third against new pitcher Tisbert, Mark O'Sullivan ripping a one-out triple to left and Vickers drawing a walk. Vickers stole second before Tisbert worked free with a critical strikeout and groundout.

Gold tied it 3-3 in the fourth when Dan Gosselin laced a two-out single to right field, took second on a passed ball and scored on Henderson's two-strike single to left.

The rally continued when Henderson stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and Pat Sharkey was hit by a pitch.

Dave Salafia followed with a vicious line drive to third base that was stabbed head-high by Kearn.

A pickoff at second base earlier in the inning also helped Tisbert escape further trouble.

Blue regained the lead 5-3 without benefit of a hit in the bottom of the fourth, notching a pair of unearned runs.

Witman drew a one-out walk, took second on a wild pitch and scored when Kaltsunas was safe on a two-base throwing error. Kaltsunas later scored as Rob Oppenheim's grounder was misplayed.

O'Sullivan launched the Gold fifth with a line drive off the shortstop's glove, but the next three batters were retired in order.

Ryan Games singled to open the Blue fifth, stole second and third, and then Hugh Quattlebaum drew a one-out walk.

Mark O'Sullivan worked out of the jam neatly, however, on a pair of ground balls to second baseman Pat Sharkey.

In the Gold sixth Brad Batchelder slapped a leadoff single, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. Andy Henderson received a two-out walk, but again Tisbert extricated himself when Sharkey lined out to third on the first pitch.

Blue added an unearned insurance run in the sixth as Ted Witman reached on an error, and later scored on a sharp bases-loaded groundout by Andy Torrisi.

In the Gold seventh O'Sullivan and Vickers worked Tisbert for back-to-back one-out walks, but a flyout to center fielder Games and groundout to shortstop Quattlebaum then ended the game.

Tisbert finished with five strikeouts and four walks.

Mark O'Sullivan and Brad Batchelder led the Gold attack with 2-for-2 efforts, while defensively Dave Salafia made a nice sliding catch in center to rob Jack Glazebrook and O'Sullivan took a hit away from George Secchiaroli with an outstanding stop at third base.

Andover Blue 10
Winthrop 5

Blue broke open a 4-4 game with five runs in the bottom of the fourth inning, and the game at the West Middle School field was halted in the sixth by darkness.

Ryan Games (1-0) was the winning pitcher, while Andy Torrisi and Andy Marshall also worked on the mound.

Ted Witman led the attack with a perfect 3-for-3 night, while Ryan Games added a double, single and three RBI. Marshall also rapped a double and single, Jack Glazebrook doubled, and defensive standouts were second basemen Rob Oppenheim with a running catch and Hugh Quattlebaum.

Quattlebaum was forced to leave the game early after getting stung by a wasp.

DSS volunteers . . .

Julie Weil, of Ivy Lane, is the mother of four and grandmother of two. She has volunteered for many different organizations and has volunteered as a case reviewer for five to six years. She handles two cases per week.

Ms. Weil's cases come from the DSS in Haverhill, Lawrence and Lowell.

"I represent the community," Ms. Weil said. "The two other members represent the foster system and DSS."

Ms. Weil said her job is to clarify information for the participants and clear up any confusion with political jargon. "All the people involved with the child are invited," she said. "Parents, foster parents, social counselors, and attorneys - if they are needed - can present their points of view."

Case reviews are required by Massachusetts general law and the three-member panel is part of the process.

Raymond Swain, of Enfield Drive, is a sales representative for Republic Engineered Steels of Ohio. He is a member of Christ Church and has four children and four grandchildren. Some of his other interests include tennis, golf, sailing and classical music. Mr. Swain was also an oboist with the Cleveland Philharmonic Orchestra.

Mr. Swain has been active with the volunteer case review program since 1988 and was also active with youth programs at the YMCA in Cleveland before he moved to Andover in 1982.

In 1988 he decided he wanted to be involved with youth programs again. "I saw an ad in the Townsmen and said, 'That sounds like something I may be interested in,' " he said.

He applied to be a case reviewer and trained with Colette Doyal, who is now the director of volunteer services at the DSS. Ms. Doyal said prospective volunteers undergo an application process that includes: a statement verifying why they want to be a case reviewer, two references that comment on the volunteer's communication skills and a name search at the DSS registry (which contains a list of individuals with crime records). Volunteers also have to participate in an interview and a day and a half training program.

Other Andover DSS volunteers are George Cutting, Mary Ann Lennon, Eleanor Kimball, Christine Munger, Marie Catalano, Jerusha Ryan and Michael Frishman.

Ms. Doyal said the training program includes an overview of the DSS, an explanation of what a family experience should be like and a discussion of what children need.

She said the most emotional and dramatic part of the training comes when the volunteers move from informational procedures to simulated cases of multiple placements or a child being taken away from family members.

The training also includes videos, role playing and learning to ask questions in a sensitive manner.

In addition to the initial training, DSS also offers other in-service training for staff members and volunteers who want to learn more about specific issues facing families. In-service training focuses on cultural issues, sexual abuse, alcohol abuse, permanent planning for children, adolescents and incest. Ms. Doyal said the in-service training options are "very varied."

DSS reviews 1,200 cases a month. A state law asks the DSS to match the child's ethnic background with the volunteer's ethnic background.

Mr. Swain volunteers predominantly in Lawrence, but also has participated in case reviews in Haverhill and Lowell. He believes there should be an advocate for the kids to add an unbiased opinion to a case handled by professionals. "It is my hope that the involvement I've had with the Y in Cleveland and my own four children allows me to constructively help."

Mr. Swain said domestic problems are not limited to Lawrence. "We have cases in Andover and North Andover," he said. "It was an eye-opener for me to come face to face with problems facing families in our area."

The committee reviews the child's case and selects a goal for the family and child. The most frequent goal is returning the child to the family. However, the goals can't always be met. "If the goal is to return the child to the family and the steps aren't successful, we discuss other options such as adoption, guardianship, and if the child is 18, independent living," Ms. Weil said.

Mr. Swain said his volunteer work gives him a great deal of respect for social workers. "It is no easy job to deal with the various problems and devastating situations within families," he said. "It is emotionally and physically draining."

As a volunteer, Mr. Swain does not see the outcome of the cases he reviews. "Once you do it, you're done," he said.

He said some of the cases he reviews are sad. "It is heart-wrenching to see the devastating cases. People don't realize how many families are in crisis and need help."

Although the case reviewers don't receive follow-up information, Ms. Doyal believes the program is a success. "The program is successful in terms of realizing the needs of children," she said.

Ms. Doyal said there has been a significant improvement in written plans between DSS and family members.

Ms. Weil said her desire to give something back to the community led her to volunteer. "I am interested in what happens to kids and the issues of abuse and neglect that have been in the newspapers for the past few months," she said.

Mr. Swain encourages anyone who wishes to get involved. "You don't really know what's happening until you get involved," he said.

The program offers volunteers a flexible schedule. "Your number of reviews is based on the time commitment you are able to make," Mr. Swain said. "It's a small contribution, but you get to share in the decision making that helps children."

Travel is easier when communicating is not a big problem

Staying in touch with folks back home when on vacation brings added peace of mind to your holiday. However, there are numerous communication pitfalls to avoid as you travel. Here are some tips and suggestions from AT&T to keep in mind as you make your travel plans.

Planning your trip: Want to get out of town but don't know what kind of accommodations are available where you're going? AT&T publishes a free hotel directory that provides names, addresses and telephone numbers of more than 8,000 hotels in cities across the country. Call 1-800-KEEPATT, Ext. 205, to request a copy.

AT&T also offers an 800 Travel Directory listing more than 7,000 toll-free, travel-related 800 numbers, including everything from hotels and resort destinations to rafting trips and casinos. You can plan your itinerary and comparison shop from the comfort of your home or office. To order a copy, call toll-free 1-800-426-8686; the 800 Travel Directory costs $4.99.

Staying in touch: Before you leave home, make sure you have a calling card from your long distance company. The cards are free and offer an easy, convenient way to make and bill calls. Also, calling card calls are less expensive than collect or person-to-person calls.

One of the handy features of the AT&T Calling Card is AT&T Message Service. If you encounter a busy signal or no answer when using your calling card (or AT&T Universal Card) to make a call, just dial "#1-23" to leave a one-minute message that will be delivered when the phone is answered. You can even request a one-minute response at no extra charge.

Traveling and want your kids, stockbroker and pet-sitter to be able to reach you... but not the boss? No problem with AT&T EasyReach's 700 Service. This unique service gives you a personal 700 number for life that lets you program whose calls can reach you anywhere in the continental U.S. You can even choose to have calls billed to you like a personal 800 number, an extra incentive for children or other family members to stay in touch.

If, on the other hand, you're staying home, but your kids are doing the traveling, give them an AT&T Custom Calling Card. With the card, you are charged for your kids' calls to your phone number (and up to nine other numbers you choose) while they're on the road. They'll always be able to call home, and if the card is lost, no one else can use it. For more information about AT&T cards or EasyReach service, call toll-free 1-800-222-0300.

Calling home from abroad: Traveling abroad and need to make a phone call to the States, but haven't figured out how to use the local country's telephone system? No problem - AT&T's USADirect Service puts you in touch with an English-speaking AT&T operator in the U.S. simply by dialing an easy access code. Just pick up any telephone, dial the access code for the country you're in and you're automatically connected to a stateside operator. There are USADirect access codes from 125 countries. Calls can be made collect or charged to your AT&T Calling Card or AT&T Universal Card. To request a wallet-sized card listing the AT&T USADirect access codes or for more information, call 1-800-331-1140, Ext. 100.

Calling between foreign countries: Trying to place a call from one foreign country to another and mystified by unfamiliar calling procedures? Need help overcoming language barriers when placing a call? AT&T's World Connect Service allows travelers to place calls between 65 foreign countries through an English-speaking AT&T operator. Simply dial the USADirect Service number from the country you're in, give the operator the country code, city code and local number of the person you want to reach and the operator will complete the call. Charges can be billed to your AT&T Calling Card or AT&T Universal Card. For more information about AT&T World Connect, call 1-800-331-1140, Ext. 100.

Overcoming language barriers: Need medical attention in a foreign country and having trouble explaining your symptoms to the local doctor? Trying to change your flight plans overseas and can't speak the local language? You can solve all your language problems with AT&T Language Line Services, which provides over-the-phone interpretation services for more than 140 languages. Simply call the USADirect number for the country you're in and ask to be connected to Language Line. Once connected, an interpreter will come on the line to assist you. The service costs $3.50 per minute and charges can be billed to your credit card.

Calling from public phones: Need to place a call from a pay phone or hotel room? Beware! You may be charged three or four times what you're used to paying for a long-distance call if you don't reach your preferred long-distance company. Here are some instructions for travelers who need to place calls from pay phones or hotel room phones:

Look on the phone for the name of the long distance company that serves it. (Or, if at a hotel, ask the front desk.) If you see your carrier's name, make your call using the dialing procedures it recommends.

If you see another company's name, you can still reach your long distance company by dialing its access number. (For example, you can reach the AT&T network by dialing 1-0-ATT-0 or 1-800-321-0288.)

If the long distance company isn't named on the phone, you can dial "00" and ask the operator which company is providing service.

After dialing your call, listen for a recorded announcement to ensure that

Last-minute travel bargains to Europe

A trip to Europe tops the list of most people's dream vacations, and more American travelers are heading to the Continent this summer to take advantage of last-minute bargains, hotel-and-airfare deals and better exchange rates than the American dollar has seen in years.

And once you've arrived, big discounts help out the savvy vacationer. Bus and metro passes are a great deal in Paris and London, offering unlimited travel, and train travel throughout Europe remains inexpensive. For art lovers, a $12 pass in Paris allows entry to many of the city's famous museums, and most museums in Berlin are free.

Hotels are offering great deals for Americans, too, with lower rates guaranteed in U.S. dollars. For example, at 38 Inter-Continental hotels located in

U.S. dollar's favorable exchange rate buys more:

Italy:	43% more pasta
France:	17% more champagne
Switzerland:	23% more chocolate
Greece:	27% more moussaka
Germany:	18% more beer
England:	33% more fish and chips

Europe's most exciting cities, "Summer Spectacular" rates can begin as low as $99 per couple, per night, including full breakfast daily and tax and service charges, through Sept. 12, 1993. Call Inter-Continental's toll-free number, 1-800-327-0200, for more information.

Mercedes-Benz S-Class sedans are twice AAA winners

A car that combines the comfort of a large luxury sedan with six-cylinder engine efficiency, and its big brother, have been named winners of two different American Automobile Association evaluation programs. Both are Mercedes-Benz S-Class luxury sedans.

The long of the two, the recently introduced 400SEL long-wheelbase model, has been ranked highest by AAA in the over-$50,000 category. The experts, based in Orlando, Fla., rated vehicles by assigning from one to 10 points in 20 categories, such as workmanship, comfort, convenience, braking, handling, acceleration and fuel economy.

On the West Coast, the standard-wheelbase Mercedes 300SE model was the top scorer. The 300SE is powered by a 228-horsepower, 24-valve inline six-cylinder engine and features one of the few five-speed automatic transmissions in auto history.

Of interest to many motorists is that the 300SE and other Mercedes S-Class sedans were completely redesigned to take advantage of the latest developments in comfort, collision protection and engine-management technology. The 300SE's all-steel body uses panels with twice the strength of conventional sheet metal. The luxury car even surpasses the United States' side-impact standard, which won't be in effect until 1997.

Come test drive the top-evaluated Mercedes-Benz automobiles at Smith Motors, at 455-461 River St. in Haverhill, or call 372-2552.

On the road, no other car delivers the superb comfort and supreme confidence of a Mercedes-Benz. Whether sedan or coupe/roadster, Mercedes-Benz automobiles offer a level of driving enjoyment virtually impossible to describe.

Keeping in mind these tips and suggestions while planning travel can make everything smoother – and more enjoyable you've reached the correct long-distance company. If that announcement is made by a company you don't want to use, you can hang up before your call is completed (and not be charged for the call). Then try to reach your company using its access number.

At some pay phones, you may be unable to reach your long-distance company because access from that phone has been illegally blocked. Complain in writing to the FCC at 2025 M St., N.W., Suite 6202, Washington, D.C. 20554, or to your state utility commission.

Caller caution: When you use your calling card from public phones, especially in busy, high-traffic areas like airports or train stations, make sure no one sees you enter your calling card number or hears you give the number to the operator. This will help prevent fraudulent use of your calling card. If you lose your calling card or suspect that your number has been compromised, contact your long-distance company immediately. AT&T customers should call 1-800-CALL-ATT.
